Refuse to Kill Highway Funds Diversion Bill In Upper House Action Delayed as Senate Quits Un- til Tuesday 14 TO 13 BALLOT Would Use $7,500,000 Along With Other Revenue Proposals

Madison — (P) — The senate adjourned today until next Tuesday after indicating by a 14 to 13 vote it favored diversion of $7,500,000 of highway funds for the next biennium in order to balance the state budget.

The close margin by which the upper house refused to kill the Peters substitute amendment, providing for diversion along with the $10,800,000 raised by the original tax bill and $600,000 additional, raised the possibility of a reversal next week with full attendance.

Action on the proposal by Senator Peters (R) Hartford, began after the senate disposed of a few remaining amendments to the original measure. These included one by progressives for a 3 per cent tax on public utilities which was rejected.

A reduction in the $1,000,000 appropriation for Bang's disease eradication to $400,000 was adopted, making the difference available to the general fund.

Relief Cost Plan

The Peters amendment was complicated by the inclusion of a provision for state guarantee of 20 per cent of local relief costs instead of 15 per cent agreed upon yesterday. This would cost an additional $1,000,000.

The Peters amendment would produce $11,160,000 through taxes, $600,000 by the Bang's disease saving, and $7,500,000 as a result of diversion, or a total of $19,260,000.

The additional $360,000 in taxes would be raised by establishing a flat 6 per cent instead of a sliding scale corporation income tax. This was stricken from the bill as approved by the assembly.

The 20 per cent relief guarantee would cut the $19,260,000 figure by $3,000,000, according to executive office estimates.

Two other substitute amendments still must be considered after action on the Peters proposal is completed. One would enact a general three per cent sales tax and the other a 2 per cent luxury tax earmarked for old age pensions.

Changes Position

In actions taken late yesterday, the senate back-tracked on the proposed increase in income surtaxes. The new income surtax, which in original form would have yielded $14,000,000, was withdrawn at the request of the chairman of the finance committee, Senator Otto Mueller (R) of Wausau.

Thus the assembly bill was left with the 60 per cent income surtax in effect last year, yielding an estimated $4,800,000 for the current biennium. With the proposed $6,000,000 tax on cigarettes, total yield would be $10,800,000.

The senate, 17 to 14, reversed its previous adoption of the Gettelman amendments which would have fixed the income surtax proceeds at about $10,200,000, with the entire amount earmarked for old age pensions.

The additional appropriations which the Gawronski amendment guaranteed for local relief costs was cut from $5,000,000 to about $2,000,000.

When the senate recessed Tuesday, the state budget was nearly $3,000,000 out of line. With yesterday's changes, the deficit would be increased.

The alternative to a supplemental tax bill was the approval of taxes on which a majority could agree. There was talk of a special session for the supplementary bill if Governor Heil thought it necessary.

Finance Firm Robbed 2nd Time in Two Weeks

Milwaukee — (P) — The Milwaukee Loan and Finance company was held up for the second time in two weeks today by a lone gunman who escaped with $200.

A holdup Aug. 15, which police believe was committed by the same man, netted nearly $500.

Fourteen detectives and police searched the building in vain when they thought they had the robber trapped on the roof.

It All Depends On the Viewpoint

"Colored lenses are risky" says the National Bureau of Standards, referring to tinted eye-glasses for auto drivers. Of course they are, and not only for motorists. It's a mistake to look at things through dark glasses, or through lenses that make everything appear blue or yellow. In fact, the best way is to scan the world, especially the business world, through the rose-colored glasses of the Post-Crescent classified want-ads. This one's view was brilliant and successful.

HULL REPORTS TO PRESIDENT ON NEWS FROM EUROPE

President Roosevelt, returning to Washington after cutting his vacation at sea short because of the European crisis, received a first hand account of developments from Secretary of State Cordell Hull as he rode from Union station to the executive mansion. The president made a bid for peace as he assured King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy that any peace moves he could make for him have the "earnest sympathy of the United States," and later sent appeals to the heads of the German and Polish governments.

Farmhand Seriously Injured In Tavern Battle at Nichols

Frank Pleckham, 39, town of Black Creek, is unconscious in St. Elizabeth hospital suffering with injuries said to have been inflicted by Mike Kuhn, Nichols, in the latter's tavern last night. Sheriff John Lappen this afternoon was to serve a warrant on Kuhn charging him with assault to do great bodily harm.

Kuhn, it was said, attacked Pleckham, claiming Pleckham had molested Kuhn's wife. Carl Krull, Nichols constable, said he found Pleckham lying on the floor when he arrived at the tavern and that Kuhn admitted striking the man. Kuhn again grabbed the unconscious man by the shoulders and shook him violently, causing his head to strike the floor, Krull told Sheriff Lappen.

Pleckham was then placed in a car and brought to the county jail. Before the car left for Appleton, Kuhn reached through the car window and struck at the unconscious form of Pleckham, Sheriff Lappen was told.

When he failed to regain consciousness this morning, Pleckham was removed in an ambulance from the jail to the hospital where x-rays were taken to determine whether he suffered a skull fracture. The attending physician said Pleckham's condition was serious.

Investigate Death Of Ontario Woman

Windsor, Ontario — (Canadian Press) — Mrs. Harold Goyeau, 26-year-old mother of three children, was found dead on the floor of her bedroom today, her throat jammed tightly between the curving neck and back of a two-foot toy swan. Death "apparently was due to strangulation."

Coroner Dr. James M. Young asked for a police investigation. The woman's seven-year-old daughter, Dorothy Jean, told police she awoke, noticed her mother was not in bed and then she heard a "gurgling noise."

The girl's screams brought a neighbor.

Lightning Kills Three Men During Sham War

Plattsburg, N. Y. — (P) — The second battle of Plattsburg fought just 150 years after colonial troops made history on the shores of Lake Champlain, ended today on a sudden, rain-drenched battle-field with 36,000 national guardsmen and 16,000 regulars locked in a bloodless, no-decision contest.

A thunderstorm which swept the area late yesterday left dead in its wake three Connecticut national guardsmen, members of 43rd division, who were struck by lightning.

Governor Gets Bill to Let Communities Permit More Than Two Tax Instalments

Madison — (P) — Final legislative action was taken by the assembly today on a bill authorizing local communities to permit more than two instalment payments on real estate taxes. It now goes to Governor Heil.

It would empower local authorities to allow payments up to July 31 and charge interest on delinquent instalments at a rate to be fixed by them.

The house approved and sent to the senate a measure allowing municipalities to issue bonds for self-liquidating projects regardless of their bonding limitations. It was introduced at the request of Grob-schmidt (P) South Milwaukee.

By a vote of 68 to 11, the assembly concurred in a senate bill increasing the appropriation for po-

Four Killed, Fifty Persons Injured in Explosion in England

London — (P) — Four persons were killed and about fifty injured today when an explosion, attributed by police to an Irish republican army bomb, shook the main street of Coventry, 90 miles northwest of London.

The building in which the explosion occurred was believed by police to be an ammunition dump for the I. R. A.

Three persons were reported arrested after the blast.

Buses and trolleys were damaged by the explosion. Many injured lay screaming for help before ambulances arrived. Glass and debris were ankle-deep.

Army Revolt Is Crushed in Chile

Santiago, Chile — (P) — Chile's left-wing government declared today that a revolutionary movement in the army had been crushed.

It said that General Ariosto Herrera, a leader of the uprising, had been arrested and that former President General Carlos Ibanez, another leader, had fled into hiding.

The break apparently came shortly after noon.

Up to then, both Ibanez and Herrera were at liberty and the government was bolstering its defense of government buildings in the center of the city with thousands of leftist volunteers.

The insurrection began in the "Tacna" artillery regiment and appeared to have been joined by other army units.

Truck Driver Cleared Of Blame in Accident

Eau Claire — (P) — A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated Ralph Olson, 23, Fairchild truck driver who figured in an accident near Augusta last July 22 in which five Chicagoans were killed.

After hearing testimony, the jury decided "sole responsibility" for the head-on collision rested with Walter B. Boyce, 40, driver of the other automobile and one of the five victims.

In addition to Boyce those killed were his wife, Lillian, 38; his daughter, Irene, 16; Ralph Senn, 38; and Lily Jane Prendergast, 16.

Racketeer Quizzed All Night After Giving Himself Up

Buchalter Surrenders in New York to J. Edgar Hoover

New York — (P) — Flat-nosed Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, the fugitive racketeer with a $50,000 price on his head who gave up in a surprise surrender to J. Edgar Hoover, was questioned today in closely-guarded secrecy.

Ending a two-year search that cost the federal government and New York state $400,000, the 43-year-old gangster voluntarily put himself in Hoover's custody last night at an undisclosed place in Manhattan.

He had gained weight and grown a dark mustache to hide his identity, Hoover said.

Lepke immediately was rushed to a cell in the federal building and subjected to rigorous, all-night questioning by federal agents, who barred city police and prosecuting officials from the room and refused even to let them see the prisoner.

Hoover declined to give details of the arrest, other than to say he and Lepke were alone when the latter surrendered.

"He told me he had never left the borough of Manhattan," the chief of the federal bureau of investigation announced briefly.

No Promises Made

"He surrendered. There was no money promised or paid by the FBI. We made him no promises of immunity or anything else."

The surrender apparently saved both the FBI and New York city the $25,000 rewards each had posted for capture of the man whom Hoover listed as "public enemy No. 4" and District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey assailed as "the most dangerous industrial racketeer in America."

Lepke also has been accused by Dewey of waging from hiding a war of extermination against his former associates that has cost five lives, including that of Isador Penn, music publishing executive, who was shot down last month in a "mistake murder."

A clash between law enforcement authorities appeared likely over who would get the first opportunity to prosecute the swarthy prisoner, charged with operating a $3,000,000 a year extortion racket in the garment, fur and hat-making industries.

Reached at Owego, Mich., where he was vacationing at his mother's home, District Attorney Dewey at first declined comment but later issued a statement declaring:

"I am happy and relieved to know that Buchalter is at last in custody. We can now proceed with the indictments which will remove him from society permanently."

Croatia Wins Fight To Obtain Voice in Yugoslav Government

Belgrade — (P) — Croatia's 20-year fight for a voice in the national government of Yugoslavia was crowned with triumph tonight as Premier Dragisa Cvetkovich began reorganizing his cabinet to include Croat ministers.

The premier hurried to Belgrade today, after his settlement with Croat leader Vladko Macek was approved by the regency council, and informed governmental circles of the new composition of his administration.

He returned to Bled later to consult again with Regent Prince Paul. Before Croatian home rule aims are realized, many far-reaching changes must be put into effect, but it was expected they would be worked out in a new spirit of harmony.

The hero of his 5,000,000 followers was stooped, bespectacled Dr. Macek, who only a few weeks ago declared that the "Belgrade clique" must accept his idea of a United States of Yugoslavia, or Croatia would be forced to secede.

Europe Marks Time as Hitler Scans Roosevelt, Russian Peace Moves

LATEST EUROPEAN BULLETINS

Paris — (P) — Premier Daladier, heading France's government and armed with extraordinary powers, in a radio address to the empire declared tonight that "France's only goal is to turn the war clouds back."

"Why does the question of Danzig risk unleashing war?" the Premier asked and, answering, said: "Because it poses the question of the entire life and liberty of Poland. It is the destiny of other peoples of Europe which is really at stake." He declared Russia had "reversed her policy by signing a treaty with Germany."

London — (P) — Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador to Berlin, is flying to London tomorrow to report to Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax on his talk today with Adolf Hitler.

Berlin — (P) — Adolf Hitler today talked with British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson on matters that were not disclosed. The ambassador visited Hitler at the fuhrer's request. Later the fuhrer received the ambassadors of France, Italy and Japan. The nature of the talks was not revealed.

Ottawa, Ontario — (Canadian Press) — Defense Minister Ian MacKenzie announced today that leaves to all members of the Canadian permanent forces had been cancelled. The headquarters staff is working at high speed to be in readiness should Canada be involved in war.

Prime Minister MacKenzie King summoned the cabinet to meet this afternoon for the second successive day to consider the latest European developments. The order cancelling leaves applies to approximately 4,000 men in the permanent militia, 3,000 in the regular air force and 2,000 in the naval services.

Moscow — (P) — The British and French military missions had farewell to K. E. Voroshiloff, soviet Russia's defense commissar, and prepared to leave for home tonight, definitely breaking off three-power negotiations for a mutual assistance alliance. Heads of the visiting missions and Voroshiloff conferred for only 30 minutes.

London — (P) — A formal agreement of mutual assistance between Great Britain and Poland was signed at the foreign office late today by Lord Halifax, the British foreign secretary, and Ambassador Count Edward Raczyński. The agreement consists of eight articles setting forth the circumstances under which the parties would come to each other's assistance.

London — (P) — The British labor party tonight sent a message "to the German people," saying:

"War is very near. You must clearly understand that if war comes Britain and France both stand firmly by their pledges to Poland. Your government does not tell you the truth. British labor which is the friend of the German people, will tell you the truth. There need be no war. Provided that the threat of force is renounced, there can be just and peaceful settlement of all international disputes."

Washington — (P) — President Roosevelt said today he did not regard the present European situation as certain to result in war.

The chief executive, discussing the critical foreign situation at a press conference, made this statement when asked whether he would call a special session of congress to act on new neutrality legislation.

Speaking to reporters only a few hours after he had addressed peace appeals to Adolf Hitler and Polish President Ignacy Moscicki, Mr. Roosevelt said he had made perfectly clear before that he would not call congress unless it was reasonably certain that war was imminent.

Saying there had been some confusion over the word imminent, he declared it carried the connotation of certainty and then went on to say he did not believe the present situation was certain to bring hostilities.

Roosevelt Not Convinced War Certain; Awaits Answers to Appeals to Germany, Poland

Every one devoutly hopes that war is not certain, he declared.

Asked whether the hope of which he spoke was based on any specific knowledge, the president replied he had no more news than the newspaper men present.

Discussing the critical state of world affairs in a calm, deliberate tone, the president said he had no Turn to page 2 col. 2

Poland Is Urged To be Cautious

Don't Give Germany
Chance to Charge Maltreatment, French Advice

Paris — (P) — The French today urged Poland to give Germany no excuse for charging maltreatment of Germans in Poland and to avoid any action that might serve as a pretext for border incidents.

In authorized quarters it was said the Poles were following this advice carefully. It was emphasized that it was purely a precautionary policy and should in no sense be considered a weakening in French determination to back up Poland in case of war.

It was stated at the same time that orders for the return of the French and British military mission at Moscow had not yet been given.

"They are remaining for the moment," informed circles said. They declined to give a reason for the delay in the expected recall.

French advices today on the German-Soviet pact were that it resulted from a personal message from Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler to Stalin. The negotiations had been going on for weeks and were brought to a successful issue only by Hitler's personal appeal, the French said, they had learned.

Get Over $30,000 In Unset Jewels

Two Disarm Guard and
Rob New York Diamond
Merchant in Chicago

Chicago — (P) — Paul DeVries, 40, a New York diamond merchant, reported to police two men disarmed his guard today and robbed DeVries of unset stones he said he valued at between $30,000 and $40,000.

One of the robbers grabbed the guard, John Parker, 45, from behind, pinned his arms and seized his .38 caliber pistol. When Parker struggled, the robber beat him on the head with the weapon. The other robber snatched DeVries' case, containing some of the gems, and an envelope filled with the rest, from a coat pocket.

The robbers fled to an automobile, driven by a third man.

DeVries told police he was head of a jewelry company bearing his name and that all the jewels were insured. He had displayed the stock to a mail-order house diamond-buyer and was returning to the loop at the time of the holdup.

Texas, Texas — (P) — Seven persons were injured fatally in an automobile-truck collision near this oil town last night.

Poland and Allies Given Another 'Day of Grace' to Yield as Mos- cow Seeks Agreement

Berlin — (AP) — All normal communications with New York, London, Danzig, Paris, Brussels, Copenhagen and Zurich and presumably with other foreign centers, were cut early tonight, indicating events of first magnitude were under way.

(This dispatch was sent from Berlin via Paris by private communication facilities).

The fact that Adolf Hitler this afternoon successively received the British, French, Italian and Japanese ambassadors indicated he told them he would act.

Soon, thereafter, the commercial lines ceased to operate. It was announced officially that all German commercial vessels must remain in German harbors or return to Germany at once.

Berlin — (AP) — Rejection of President Roosevelt's peace plea to Fuhrer Hitler was forecast by competent sources today as nazis gave Poland, Great Britain and France another "day of grace," in which to capitulate to German demands.

The president's message suggesting that Poland and Germany settle their differences either through direct negotiations, by arbitration or by conciliation was studied by the fuhrer in the reich's chancellery this morning.

The first answer is expected to be made public tonight, probably through the foreign office mouthpiece, the Deutsche Diplomatische-Politische Korrespondenz.

Excellent sources said the reply would be negative in tone with the implication that President Roosevelt had sent his plea "to the wrong address."

"It should have gone," these sources said, "to England."

Two More Classes Of Reservists are Summoned in Italy

Few Indications Nation
Expects to Become Involved in War

Rome — (P) — Two more classes of Italian reservists were called to the colors today, bringing those under arms to a total of six classes.

The classes called today were composed of those men born in 1903 and 1913.

They were estimated unofficially to add about 500,000 men to the 1,300,000 already under arms.

It was announced officially that the naval and air ranks of Italy's fighting machine had been "almost completely filled" since Aug. 21.

In addition to the six army classes, 35 battalions of militiamen have been called up, as well as specialists of other army classes.

Premier Mussolini made a brief appearance on the balcony of his Palazzo Venezia to acknowledge the cheers of a crowd this morning, but refrained from speaking to delegations of Italian school teachers and Albanians who had come for a glimpse of him.

His silence has been interpreted in foreign circles as indicating a desire to avoid any saber-rattling that might make the situation worse.

Italian newspapers have shown unusual moderation in their references to France, at whom they rallied only recently for failure to heed Italy's claims for privileges in the Tunisia, the Suez canal and Djibuti.

Fascist newspapers told of the danger of war, but there were still few outward signs that Italy expected to be involved.

Aldermen Refuse to Fire Convicted Mayor

Waterbury, Conn. — (P) — Frank Hayes still is mayor of Waterbury, since the board of aldermen failed by two votes to oust him last night on charges resulting from his conviction of participating in a million-dollar conspiracy to defraud the city.

Commission Asked to Help Man Suffering 'Wireless' Ailment

Washington — (P) — The federal communications commission promised today to investigate the problem of a Wisconsin man whose uncle is suffering from what he terms "wireless."

Aids of Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) referred a letter from the nephew to the FCC.

The youth, a resident of Pepin county, Wisconsin, said his uncle suffers from pains in the heart and chest although physicians find nothing wrong. He reported that 20 physicians had examined and found him sane and an intelligent conversationalist.

In his letter, the nephew reported that his uncle believes some university has a short, medium, or long wave transmitter that emits waves similar to those of broadcast stations, but which produce "sharp, burning sensations in his heart along with seemingly audible noises and conversations."

Evidence of Fractured Ribs Found on Dolezal

Cleveland, Ohio — (P) — Coroner S. R. Gember announced today an autopsy on the body of Frank Dolezal, torso murder suspect, showed evidence of six fractured ribs, but added the fractures occurred "two or three weeks ago."

"Apparent cause of death was asphyxiation caused by the rope," the coroner reported.

Steamships are Crowded as American Tourists Rush to Quit War-Threatened Europe

London — (P) — Paying cabin-class prices for cots in steamship aisles, thousands of Americans were trying to scramble home today from war-threatened Europe.

In London, steamship offices were jammed. American tourists, advised by United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy to go home, crowded into the American embassy for help in getting passage.

Three ships belonging to probable neutrals, the New Amsterdam of the Holland America line and the American Banker and American Importer of the United States line, all left Britain with record crowds.

Around 500 Americans who were advised to leave Poland were aboard the Polish liner Batory which stopped at Copenhagen today.

New Deal Faces Heil's Attack in Sheboygan Speech

Governor Thinks 'Cooperation Will Help Republicans in 1940'

Sheboygan—(P)—Governor Julius P. Heil assailed the Roosevelt administration before the state convention of Young Republicans today and predicted that the "cooperation" which brought victory to Wisconsin Republicans in 1938 would bring a "more complete" victory in 1940.

The governor did not touch upon state politics except to praise the work of Young Republican members of the senate and assembly.

"The Republicans go into the 1940 campaign under the most encouraging circumstances," he said. "The present administration in Washington is guilty of dismal failures, purchased at fearful expense. Only recently the leader of the New Deal party virtually warned his followers that they must continue to accept his policies followed over a course of six wrong years."

"It was a warning to the young folks of America that they must tighten up their belts and fix their eyes on the Republican party, because private industry cannot hope to create jobs in the atmosphere of tumult and terror that has existed since 1933."

Bids For Youth

"It was a challenge to you Young Republicans to strike at this vulnerable spot in New Deal philosophy and to bring to the Republican camp the millions of young men and women who will be casting their votes."

He said young people should be educated on economic problems and should be told that a slogan of 1916 "Keep us out of war" would be more appropriate in 1940 if it read "Keep us out of work."

The governor mentioned by name many Republican legislators, Senators Maurice Cockley, Beloit; Assembly Speaker Vernon Thomson, Racine; Center, and Assembly Floor Leader Reuben Peterson, Berlin, who he said was "fitted for a more favorable spot in the political sun."

He also mentioned Assemblymen Tony Gruszka, Mosinee; Charles Judd, Benoit; John McBride and William Double, Milwaukee; Charles Powell, Virgo, and Leo Niemum, Oshkosh, and Representative Richard F. McMillen, Fond du Lac, state chairman of the Young Republicans, urged subordination of personal ambitions in order to make possible a united front "against the enemy."

"At a time like this we must learn harmony," he said. "Without it we are open to criticism and loss of confidence."

He added: "At a time like this the welfare of the party must take precedence over any other desire."

Medicated Paste Is New Discovery

Laboratory Experts Develop Treatment for Ulcers, Bed Sores

Atlanta—(P)—Slowly-healing ulcers and bed sores which ordinary medical treatment respond dramatically to a new type of medicated paste which can be prepared by neighborhood pharmacists, two laboratory experts reported today.

The paste is based upon a theory that the surface layer of such ulcers should be kept moist and that the proper type of medication will break the tissue cells and aid in forming new, healthy skin.

It was described in a paper by Bernard Fantus and H. A. Dymally, of the laboratory of pharmacology and therapeutics in the University of Illinois college of medicine, and presented at the annual convention of the American Pharmaceutical association here.

Dr. Fantus uses either pectin or tragacanth gum as a base for the paste and a salt solution as a medium for development of the cells. The crater of the ulcer is filled with the paste and then covered with a water-proof substance.

In most cases the dressing does not have to be changed for two or three days, reducing the nursing time and the cost of supplies for dressing the paper said.

Research on the new paste was carried on under a grant of the pharmaceutical association. The clinical investigations were made at the Cook County hospital, Chicago.

Large Associated Press Staff 'Covering' Crisis in Europe

New York—(P)—An Associated Press news and picture staff four times the size of that which covered the World war plunged today into the task of covering Europe's "war nerves." A conflict that threatens momentarily to explode into real war with the eyes of millions of men already under arms.

Staff members aided by unsurpassed facilities for speeding their reports of the fast-breaking developments to Associated Press member papers dot the critical spots on Europe's map, keeping a 24-hour watch on potential battlefronts.

Bureau men working long hours and with little rest in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Moscow, Warsaw and Danzig—objects of world attention as the crisis continues—kept the telephone and direct cable circuits to London and New York busy with thousands of words of news.

Staff photographers in London and on the continent meanwhile covered preparedness operations of the European powers. By cable and radio from London and Berlin more than a dozen of their most important pictures sped direct to New York. These included pictures of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's meeting with Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

replies as yet from his message to Germany and Poland to settle their differences either by direct negotiation, impartial arbitration, or through a neutral moderator, or to his earlier appeal of yesterday to the king of Italy to intervene in behalf of peace.

Asked about American preparedness measures, Mr. Roosevelt said the machinery which began to take form two years ago had been perfected in the last year and the only question remaining was the pressing of the button to put it in operation at the proper time.

Asked whether this state of preparation represented the maximum preparedness machinery this country could produce, the president said he would not call it that but preferred to say it was better than at any time in the past.

To Help Americans

Included, he said, were financial preparation and preparatory measures for evacuating Americans from war zones.

Most of his conferences today, he added, were related to the use of this machinery should it become necessary.

Earlier in the conference the president was asked for comment on the foreign sources of information on which Senator Borah (R-Iowa) once said he based his (Borah's) belief that no war was imminent. Borah opposed action at the last congressional session on revised neutrality legislation.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had no comment, then remarked that the implications about the matter made on the radio by one or two of his friends were perhaps justified. He did not name the friends nor explain the implications.

The president said he had not cancelled his west coast trip, scheduled for Oct. 1, but added that whether he goes will depend on developments. He also said he would like to go to Hyde Park, N. Y., Monday night, but would not do so if the situation then is as it is today.

Amused by Question

Near the close of the interview, attended by about 125 correspondents, the president was greatly amused by another question about congress, namely, what would have to happen in Europe before he called a special session.

The president laughed and said he did not believe he would go over that again, but added quickly that the war factor in the world news of today because there were other things more important.

"Chuckles swept the conference room when one asked for comment on the activities at Oslo, Norway, of Representative Hamilton Fish (R-N. Y.), who had been reported making some effort to forestall war. The president laughed and wanted to know why the snicker."

He had no one in mind, he said, when he suggested the selection by Hitler and Mosicki of a neutral mediator in event direct negotiation or impartial arbitration were turned down. He made this remark in reply to an inquiry whether he had in mind a Latin American statesman.

Suggests 3 Methods

Climaxing a thorough study of the foreign crisis after his return to the capital, Mr. Roosevelt sent messages to the two men last night asking for a truce and suggesting three methods for ending the Nazi-Polish controversy:

1. "Direct negotiation."

2. "Impartial arbitration in which they can both have confidence."

3. "The procedure of conciliation, selecting as conciliator or moderator a national of one of the traditionally neutral states of Europe, or a national of one of the American republics which are all of them free from any connection with or participation in European political affairs."

Stephen T. Early, one of the president's secretaries, said neither the president nor any official of this government would offer himself as the conciliator, so there was no possible suggestion of involving the United States. As to whether the president would accept if he were asked, he said that bridge would be crossed when it was reached.

The President's Appeal to Hitler

The president's appeal to Hitler, coming only a few hours after his telegram to King Vittorio Emanuele seeking his good offices, was his fourth such message to der Fuehrer in less than a year. The first two were sent at the time of the "Munich crisis" last September. The third was in April.

Mr. Roosevelt noted to Hitler that he had not received a reply to his last appeal, and added:

SURRENDERS

Louis "Lepke" Buchalter (above) surrendered last night to J. Edgar Hoover. The long-sought racketeer was questioned all night by federal agents in a cell in the federal building in New York. He has been charged by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey as "the most dangerous industrial racketeer in America."

"But because of my confident belief that the cause of world peace—which is the cause of humanity itself—rises above all other considerations, I am again addressing myself to you with the hope that the war which impends and the consequent disaster to all peoples everywhere may yet be averted."

The president nevertheless did not have in mind another "Munich conference" in which Czechoslovakia was split up, was indicated by this paragraph in the messages to the Nazi leader and President Mosicki:

Both 'Independent'

"Both Poland and Germany being sovereign governments, it is understood, of course, that upon resort to any one of the alternatives I suggest, each nation will agree to accord complete respect to the independence and territorial integrity of the other."

Seeking to give Europe a breathing spell after the tense atmosphere of the last few days, Mr. Roosevelt asked that both nations agree "to refrain from any positive act of hostility for a reasonable and stipulated period."

The message to Hitler was longer and more bluntly worded than the telegram to President Mosicki. The former ended with these sentences:

"I appeal to you in the name of the people of the United States, and I believe in the name of peace-loving men and women everywhere, to agree to the solution of the controversies existing between your government and that of Poland through the adoption of one of the alternative methods I have proposed."

"I need hardly reiterate that should the governments of Germany and Poland be willing to solve their differences in the peaceful manner suggested, the government of the United States still stands prepared to contribute its share to the solution of the problems which are endangering world peace in the form set forth in my message of April 14."

The president's April message suggested non-aggression pacts for the nations of Europe, to be followed by conferences to promote commerce and disarmament.

MOBILIZATION ORDERS

Washington—(P)—Army officers said today mobilization day orders were in the hands of all regular army officers and officers of the national guard.

The orders, they said, are sent out each year and therefore there was no special significance in the fact that this year's notices had only recently been dispatched.

The orders name a mobilization point for each officer at which he must report as soon as possible after a "M-day" proclamation has been issued.

Questionnaires also have recently been sent to reserve officers asking them to make reports within 60 days on their availability for mobilization. Army officers said these, too, were sent out annually, and nothing special was being done this year.

London—(P)—Great Britain hailed as a ray of hope today in the rapidly-darkening European situation President Roosevelt's peace appeals.

But, while the nation hoped for some break in the international deadlock that would point the way to conference instead of armed conflict, it grimly began to adjust itself to a new warlike tempo.

President Roosevelt's second appeal within 24 hours, directed to Fuehrer Hitler of Germany and President Ignace Mosicki of Poland, came too late for comment by London morning papers but it was welcomed generally as bolstering yesterday's parliamentary speeches by Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax and Prime Minister Chamberlain.

While Halifax reaffirmed Chamberlain's assertion that Britain was determined to fulfill her obligations to Poland if Poland fights over

Wausau Host to LaFollette Party

Young Progressives Meeting May be Sounding Board for Senator

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Progressive party leaders are hoping that the Young Progressive conference at Wausau Saturday and Sunday will be successful enough to warrant a general party convention later in the year it was learned here.

Original purpose of the Wausau meeting, however, is to lay the foundation for a new Progressive youth organization which will be an auxiliary to the regular party machinery for the campaign next year.

It appeared today that the Progressive youngsters may set the scent for a keynote to Senator Robert M. LaFollette's reelection campaign in 1940. The senior senator returned to Wisconsin a week ago but thus far has refrained from discussing his personal plans, or state political affairs.

It is known, however, that he has planned an extensive speaking itinerary for the remainder of the year, and that he is holding private meetings of Progressive party leaders in each locality he visits.

The feeling among Capitol Progressives on Gustave J. Keller's invitation to LaFollette to run for reelection as a Democrat is that the public statement was premature. More than a year remains before the next election, they point out, and LaFollette will probably not formally admit that he is interested in reelection until sometime next spring or early summer. More partisan LaFollette followers are confident that the New Deal Democrats of the Keller wing of the party will support LaFollette whatever is his party label, and that the perils to LaFollette's reelection will probably be forthcoming as it was during his last election campaign in 1934. At that time the senator, during his appearance at the Green Bay centennial, gave the senator a flattering oratorical pat on the back which helped him win.

Besides military officers, Goering and Von Ribbentrop, Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels participated in the council.

That a decision was reached looking toward a "swift, complete solution from the standpoint of protection of German nationals in Poland, national subsistence and the upholding of German honor" seemed a certainty, it was stated.

German demands, in addition to return of Danzig, were said to include return of territory lost to Poland in World war settlements.

Developments in and around Danzig in the last 24 hours, reliable informants said, have set the stage for the denouement of a problem which has kept Europe in a stew all summer.

Appointment of a Nazi district leader Albert Forster as chief of state in Danzig and German allegations that a division of Polish troops was arrayed before the free state in preparation for a sudden attack gave Hitler an excuse to march, observers said, should he desire to seize upon it.

May Ask Hitler Aid

Forster, in the view of men with good government connections, can now take two steps: Declare Danzig a part of Germany, and then call on Hitler for help and protection against the Polish army standing at its borders.

The German army could enter Danzig and Polish territory—as it did Austria—in the role of policeman to "establish law and order" upon appeal from within the free city.

Men in touch with the chancellery said Germany would not declare war upon Poland, but would merely organize a punitive expedition to Poland to "establish law and order."

The big question mark remained: What will England and France do?

Germany was more convinced than ever, men close to the foreign office say, that the British and the French will not fight. This was the belief even after Chamberlain's determined speech which responsible quarters here held was "purely negative."

Wausau—(P)—The Wisconsin Elks association announced at its annual convention today that Doris May Spaddel, Sheboygan, had won a $300 scholarship as first prize in a statewide constitutional lore contest for high school seniors.

Officials said it was the first time a girl ever had won the contest.

Doris Austin, Rhinelander, won the $200 second prize, and James Ruchti, Janesville, the $100 third prize.

Delegates adopted a resolution increasing from $50 to $100 the expenditures permissible for individual cases by the lodge's crippled children's commission. A larger expenditure for individual cases had been urged by Charles Broughton, Sheboygan publisher and state chairman of the commission.

Delegates were to attend a barbecue on Rib mountain this afternoon and a banquet tonight at which the principal speaker will be Henry C. Warner of Dixon, Ill., national grand exalted ruler.

Scene Shifts to Rome in European Crisis—Lawrence

Broad Implications in Roosevelt's Appeal to King of Italy

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Again, as last September, the scene shifts to Rome. Just before the Munich pact, it was President Roosevelt who urged Premier Mussolini to mediate. This time, an appeal has been sent by Mr. Roosevelt to the king of Italy, but with the obvious purpose of interesting Signor Mussolini in the cause of peace.

The broad implications of the president's peace move are hardly to be discerned from the polite and formal, though fervent language of the appeal. It could be read as an effort to persuade Italy to detach herself from the so-called axis. Any declaration that Italy would remain neutral might be as sensational a diversion of the balance of power as was the sudden announcement of a Russian-German treaty.

Italy is in an exposed position in the Mediterranean. Already Franco in Spain has announced that signing of the Russian-German pact leaves him free to act as he pleases. It would appear that Franco would not make such a statement without recognizing that Italy might be offended. It would not be of so much concern to Franco to alienate Berlin, but it means a great deal to take a course different from that of Mussolini.

Three Inferences
In view of the sympathetic interest displayed by the Vatican in Franco's war against communism, the impression prevails here that the three influences—the Vatican, the Italian government, and the Spanish government—will be found urging Berlin not to make too much of an issue of the Polish controversy and to find some pacific way out.

In any event, much depends now on Premier Mussolini. If he takes the message from the American president to mean that the United States would dislike very much to see the Italian people become involved in a war, or if he merely infers that the president recognizes the unique opportunity which Mussolini has to preserve world peace, the result is the same: the Italian leader has received a clear indication of America's concern.

What distinguishes the present crisis from that which was ended by the Munich pact last year is that, in this instance, the moves for war are definite and earnest. No bluff on England's part can be detected now. Every action taken, including the summoning of the British parliament, shows that the British are determined to defend Poland.

British Purpose
There was no such proof of British purpose with respect to Czechoslovakia. The Germans knew the British were not ready for war. Hence Hitler could risk maximum demands. This time the German government knows it can bring about war by a single hostile step of aggression.

Is Germany ready for war? Outwardly the impression has been given of a united country, loyal to the fuhrer. But there is doubt whether this can be true of the many discordant elements in Czechoslovakia and Austria. Germany's rear will not be as easy to police if war breaks out, and the prospect of revolutions in the areas supposed to have been placed under German domination grows brighter as the German army's attention is concentrated on any big war front.

The German people have never had to face the reality of war throughout the various moves of Herr Hitler. They knew that, at the right moment, he could recede and avoid bloodshed, that he could out-bluff the other nations because he was able to order a war, whereas the democracies could only summon their parliaments and make sure that they had attacked on a cause sufficiently broad to produce a war spirit. Germany's experts have not figured that England would fight for Poland over Danzig. But what they haven't guessed is that, if the demands go beyond that, England will enter the struggle on the side of Poland.

Even at this early writing, with changes in the situation being recorded hourly, the forces driving for peace have more logic on their side than has war. Hitler can gain something out of the Polish crisis, possibly Danzig itself, without war. He can only risk internal trouble and disaster in a long war, which is bound to come if he insists on destroying Poland's independence.

Pension Bill Sets Payments For Old Age Help at New High

Madison—(AP)—The $40 a month old age pension bill recommended by a joint committee of both houses of the legislature, will be given a public hearing in the assembly chamber Tuesday.

The house approved use of the chamber on request of Assemblyman P. Bradley McIntyre (R) "an- nunciator, co-chairman of the finance committee, which will join with the pension committee in conducting the hearing."

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—After almost eight months of doubt and curiosity, the Republican state administration has made public its attitude on one of the most absorbing political topics of present-day Wisconsin politics—old-age assistance.

In an omnibus bill introduced in the state senate Wednesday the administration's joint pension committee makes a series of proposals which will make old age pensions the most expensive single welfare function of the state government, and if enacted into law, will put pension expenditures at a record height.

Although the committee was eloquently silent on the source of the money which will be needed to make its recommendations effective, the contents of the administration bill put the Heil regime in the position of proposing the most generous pensions on the most liberal terms in Wisconsin's history.

Although much of the present bill was inspired or dictated by the requirements of the new amendments to the federal social security law, if it becomes law it will put the Heil administration far ahead of the previous LaFollette administration in its pension policy. The LaFollette leadership had previously claimed to be the most generous in old-age pension laws.

2 1/2 Million Increase
The effect of the pension bill would be to increase the number of beneficiaries by liberalizing of the terms, decrease the burden on the counties by decreasing the percentage of their participation in the costs, and increase the cost of the state government upward of $2,500,000 for the Heil term, and probably much more for succeeding administrations.

The crucial detail in the pension program has thus been ignored, however. Doubtless it will be brought into discussion at the public hearing on the pension bill which is tentatively scheduled for next Tuesday. It is the question of providing the funds, without which the liberalized pension laws will be meaningless. There was some talk in the capitol today of putting legislators "on the spot" by proposing the unpopular liquor tax as a measure to finance pensions. The senate has killed a Heil proposal to increase the tax on liquor. Some legislators believe that such a tax could be passed, since the legislature would hesitate to defeat a measure to raise funds for pensions, a delicate subject in legislative politics.

The new pension bill proposes to increase the maximum allowance to $40. It is now $30. Practically, however, its effects will be more limited. At a liberal estimate, the average pension by the terms of the bill may be $25 at the end of the Heil term. It is now about $22 so that the administration will have provided something less than an increase of $3 per person.

By the terms of the amended federal law, the state will be able to receive half of that increase from Washington.

The administration estimates that the liberalization will result in an increase of 5 per cent in the pension rolls during the remaining 18 months of its term, or a total of 3-000 cases.

More To Counties
Probably the most fundamental change proposed is the decrease of the county's share of the cost from 20 per cent to 15 per cent. That will have the effect of allowing the counties to bear their share of an increased pension program at about the same cost to them as at present. The increase in the maximum pension allowances, it is expected, will about equal the difference in the cost to the counties. The result will be that with their present pension budgets, the counties will be able to pay 15 per cent of the cost of an expanded program.

Under its budget, adopted earlier, the state administration provided $7,786,000 for old age benefits for two years. By increasing its burden from 30 to 35 per cent, it is expected that the state's pension costs for the aged will rise to $10,222,000 for the two years. That leaves a deficiency of more than $2,500,000 for the balance of the term—about 18 months—which will have to be filled by new tax revenues if the new pension program is to become effective.

The new bill also proposes to eliminate certain restrictions on the granting of pensions. For example, the present law provides that no person who has been convicted of non-support during the preceding ten years, who has been in prison under sentence of felony, or who has been a tramp or a beggar within a specified time, can be eligible for assistance.

"Since old age assistance is to provide a more humane method of caring for needy aged people it seems proper that these requirements now found in the law be eliminated," said the special committee which drafted the bill.

"Moreover, these eliminations commend themselves on the ground of some decrease in investigational and administrative expense as well as the elimination of the need of asking embarrassing questions of this type of every deserving aged person who may find himself obliged to ask for aid."

60,000 On Rolls
It was also suggested that the present law providing that any person whose application is denied may not renew his petition for a year be modified to six months restriction in order "to accomplish justice and to be in keeping with the avowed purpose of providing a better system of care for the aged needy."

The committee explained that the reason for its proposed reduction of the county proportion of the pension costs was due to a desire to relieve the general property taxpayer.

It estimated that 60,000 persons will be on the old-age pension rolls at the end of 1941, and 53,000 at the end of the present fiscal year.

It also called attention to the phenomenal growth of expenditures for old-age assistance, from $156,525 spent for 996 persons in 1931, to an anticipated record total of $16,611,000 in 1940-41.

Year	Number	Total Cost
1940	60,000	$16,611,000
1939	53,000	13,358,400
1938	43,508	10,033,274
1937	37,696	8,538,177

Arrangements to combine the Outagamie County Public Welfare department with the pension department still are being held up pending action of the state legislature in providing funds for operating costs of the Welfare department.

Under an agreement reached with the county board, the two departments will be combined under one head with the state to continue to pay expenses of the welfare division. The welfare department is housed in the old post office building and until last week operated in connection with the city relief department. The city relief offices have been moved to the new city hall and the WPA sewing project is slated to be moved early next month.

Disguise Helps Bring About Arrest of Man

Chicago—(AP)—Richard Ross' disguise was a great help Thursday to the police.

Police Sergeant Charles Casey and his squad stopped Ross for routine questioning and were surprised when the man volunteered he was wanted for the theft of an automobile in Omaha, Neb.

Sergeant Casey said the only reason he stopped Ross was that his flaming red hair, bright green silk shirt and gray striped trousers aroused his interest.

Ross' only complaint was "how did you ever recognize me? I dyed my brown hair red and wore flashy clothes because I always dressed conservatively before."

Appleton Students Return to Classrooms September 11

The same old story is about to repeat itself, though the characters and costumes are different in this Back to School drama! On September 11 Appleton schools open for another year . . . and as always, there's a familiar mixture of enthusiasm and sorrow on the student's part . . . and the crisp, calico dresses and pigtails have been supplanted by modern silks, cottons and short hair.

Today's group of Back to Schoolers have another thing in common with those students of past years . . . they need things! They need dresses, suits, shoes, shirts, ties, stockings, books, pencils, paper, typewriters and scores of other things that will help them be better students!

And speaking of bygone days, Appleton stores were never like they are today! Stocks are larger and more complete . . . prices are lower . . . you can buy things for your students today that weren't even thought about in the old days. And what is more important, Appleton stores are abreast of modern merchandising and manufacturing methods that bring you items of a quality that only millionaires could afford a few years back!

So shop the Appleton stores . . . they'll be a great help in getting this educational business in operation once more! Their advertisements in the Post-Crescent are signs of reliability.

See Little Hope Now for Storing Wolf River Water

Catlin's Leeman Amendment Nullifies Plans For Lily Reservoir

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Promoters of the Wolf river reservoir plan—designed to improve the water in the lower Fox river for the benefit of industrial and other power users there—found today that they are back where they started almost a month ago in their efforts to get a charter bill through the state assembly.

With the adoption of the amendment offered by Assemblyman Catlin, Appleton, to permit a reservoir at Leeman, which would nullify the plans of the Wolf River reservoir company, sponsors of the project took a pessimistic point of view today and were fearful that their plan will be upset when a final vote is taken in the lower house next week.

Principal objection in the argument presented thus far is an objection against the chartering of a private corporation for the use of public and natural resources for profits. The plan has been characterized as a "steal" on repeated occasions.

Urges State Control
 One alternative proposed by Progressive critics of the private corporation's attempt is a state agency to control the waters of the Wolf and the Fox rivers. Republican legislators have already vetoed that suggestion, however, on two occasions, recalling that one of their first official acts this session was to charter a similar project proposed in the LaFollette-concocted and created Wisconsin Development authority.

Typical of the opposition to the reservoir project for the Wolf were the comments of Senator Michael F. Kresky of Green Bay, a Progressive senate leader, on a bill to rewrite a law under which the Wisconsin Valley Improvement company has enjoyed rights similar to those proposed for the Wolf River reservoir company for a number of years:

Helping to defeat the bill by Senator Otto Mueller of Wausau, Kresky characterized the Wisconsin Valley bill as an attempt to give "the tremendous power to control the whole river valley, and to charge tolls for the use of public water along the river. This will give the promoters of this scheme the character of monopolists. This is not only a water steal, but it is an acquisition of a lien on the water used by business, agriculture, and industry. It is an iniquitous proposition."

Kresky, always fervent on the power issue, maintained in a long speech that Wisconsin has no energy resources save water, that while power is the base of the state's future industrial prosperity, and that the rivers of the state should be controlled by the public in order to make use of their tremendous power generating capacities in the future.

Deal Between Stalen, Hitler Shows They're in Same Lodge

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Several years ago, when John O'Brien was interim mayor of New York the reporters at the city hall asked him whom he had selected for an important appointive job in the administration.

Tammany's man paused a second, then answered: "I don't know; they haven't told me yet."

The incident is recalled by the conduct of the communist leaders and editors in New York in the embarrassing hours just after Hitler and Stalin finally acknowledged before the world the fact repeatedly pointed out in these dispatches in the last two years that there was no conflict between their respective types of dictatorship.

The communist paper ignored the story, and Stalin's representatives in the American communist party went under cover until they could get in touch with Moscow to learn what they were to say. What they finally did have to say was 1,500 words of confused explanation, no part of which, however, altered the fact that the two murderers had finally decided to abandon all pretense of ideological differences and pool their interests, each, of course, with the mental reservations inherent in his treacherous nature.

The communists, like the leaders of the nazis' anti-American band, get their orders and interpretations from headquarters abroad, and, for some reason, probably a slip-up in Moscow, the American agents and editors didn't get their "line" in time to meet the issue when it broke.

The consolidation will now call for a great campaign of propaganda and curly reasoning, but the American communists, nevertheless, will find themselves obliged to quit the party or themselves line up with Stalin in the very same course of conduct—to wit, trafficking with Hitler, for which Stalin slaughtered so many of his associates.

U. S. Writers Attacked For Predicting This Thing
 To Americans, however, the identity of communism and nazism

became obvious a long time ago, and many American writers have been savagely attacked by the communists here for predicting the working agreement between two dictators whose reason for being, up to now, had been their pretended mutual detestation. Under each it had been a capital crime even to think amiably of the other's dictatorship, and many men died in both countries for advocating or attempting to arrange a condition which Hitler and Stalin now have agreed upon themselves.

The embarrassment of the communists has just begun because communism here has, to a limited extent, been getting away with a pretense of democracy, and labor groups under the domination of admitted or disguised communists or fellow-travelers have adopted resolutions condemning nazism and fascism but pointedly omitting any condemnation of communism on the ground that communism was, as stated in the new propaganda, twentieth century Americanism.

Now, this democracy and twentieth century Americanism admits that it is entirely compatible—in fact, identical—with Hitlerism, and that puts those discriminating but, after all, gullible resolutioners in the position of condemning Hitler but silently indorsing his partner in the war on the democratic peoples and their ideals.

In a very short time, as soon as they begin to regain consciousness, these American communists, particularly the Jews among them, who hate nazism and hoped that Stalinism was somehow different, will begin to edge away from their affiliation. They will realize that the Stalin hypocrisy was no less evil than Hitler's and that the hatred of nazism in Russia, like Hitler's war on bolshevism, was just an act.

This deal between the two dictators will compel an honest examination of nazism and communism not by a few by but the millions, and that inspection will reveal beyond any honest man's ability to doubt that the only difference is one of labels.

The very least result here will be the complete refutation of the pretense that Stalin's communism is democracy or even friendly to democracy. The American labor movement will turn on the comrades who have entered the unions in democratic guise, and it may be predicted that when they offer a resolution to a convention of Americans condemning fascism and nazism without including communism chair legs will become parliamentary weapons.

A public hearing on the applications of Louis Simon and Jacob Golper, who conduct junk businesses in residential districts, for junk licenses will be held at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, Sept. 5, in city hall.

Action on the two applications was deferred at the last council meeting when aldermen granted licenses to seven other applicants. Objections to the two yards in residential districts were voiced at the meeting.

THE WAR THAT KNOWS NO END

However great the sadness of the American people if the flames of war sweep Europe the facts must nevertheless be kept accurately in mind.

For the European war has been going on for over 2,000 years. It is a perpetual war in so far as it is possible to make a war endless.

Today Germany may be a prime inducing cause. And others will seek to cement the world against her on the ground that she is about to destroy civilization.

Tomorrow Russia may occupy the position occupied by Germany today. A hundred years ago France held it. A century before that Spain was the devil. England and Portugal were on the spot before Spain. So the plume for leadership has been passed pretty well around.

Let us not for a moment, despite our distress at the seeming inability of Europe to cure its ancient disease, forget that it is the same old war, part and parcel of the onslaught of Attila the Hun, the campaign of the Turks that went to the gates of Vienna, the rape of the Netherlands by Spain, the slicing of Poland by Russia, Prussia, and Austria together, the sacking of Italy by any number of French armies, the almost annual Balkan battles and so on through the night.

A great many decent people quit Europe because of this perpetual war. Most of them came to America. It would be ironic indeed if their children were to return to pick up the ancient quarrel of which their sires relieved them by sailing dangerous seas for many weeks in little boats.

THE SOLUTION OF TYROL

About 200,000 Germans living in South Tyrol and naturally a part of Austria were transferred by the treaties that terminated the Great War to Italy.

That is, Italy obtained sovereignty over them but they remained German, talked German, thought German, and prayed for deliverance from the Italian despot.

Since Italy concluded an arrangement with Germany to solve this problem by forcing these Tyrolese to abandon their homeland and become absorbed in the Reich it seemed that the agreement contained some virtues in that it at least cleared the district of a bothersome minority problem, which, the world has learned, may flare at any time into strife.

But articles from Tyrol indicate that the ease with which tyrants issue orders creates heart rending situations for the multitude, so often speechless, and whose attachments to their homeland are deep and beautiful enough to be almost described as divine.

There is an ironic side to this thing that must have been the original cause of the distorted faces called gargoyles. Correspondents write that on the municipal building of Scena in the Tyrol are inscribed maxims of Mussolini such as: "My ambition is this: to make the Italian people strong, great, prosperous, free." "One faith, love of country, one desire, to make the Italian people great."

And the ludicrous thing is that the people who looked up at those words written in Italian couldn't read them and didn't want to understand them if they could.

Here is a piece of territory in which the German language has been spoken for about 700 years of which history knows, and how long before that they know not. And yet it is to remain under the banner of another nation is it not better for the future, for the children, if the elders, however much they protest, are removed to die upon a foreign strand?

Hitler could not make another Sudentland out of Tyrol else he would lose the Italian pact. But the people who are dispossessed and betrayed into exile will not, it is hoped, be reminded that the first Italian governor over them issued a guarantee of the preservation of their language, customs and constitutions, and that the next governor scrapped this piece of paper and put it in the fire.

Perhaps we are really missing the greatest deduction to be drawn from the age in which we live. Will not the historian call it that period when the people selected or had imposed upon them rulers who regarded compliance with a promise as a weakness?

SOCIALISM, A WORLD'S FAIR AND THE MECHANICAL MAN

The New York World's Fair is in a blue condition. It has dismissed thousands of employees in order to live within its income. And it has literally moved every possible influence in order to increase attendance.

Why does it fail in spite of assurances from thousands of reliable sources that it surpasses in wonder and magnificence anything the world has ever known?

Our chronic state of depression can hardly be blamed since Chicago staged a successful fair when the depression was in its darkest mood.

Is it, then, because the country is attempting too much by way of constant merriment and entertainment to replace the lack of wealth producing work which should always precede mere circulation of funds induced by social activities?

The Fair has great political support. Rulers of nation, state, and city stimulated its creation and supported it at every turn of the road. Their idea was understandable. They figured it would be an excellent means of increasing transportation, hotel and business income. It would heighten the circulation of funds and therefore, they reasoned, increase income.

Had not the President so often stated that the country would be on an even keel if the national income could be raised to 80 billion?

But these men who are guided by slogans and seek to rule a nation with a selection of apparently wise words find themselves constantly thwarted in that their plans when put together lack the strength of a mouse.

The great planners may have arrived at the point familiar to jockeys when even repeated blows of the whip obtain no increase of speed from a weary and jaded horse. Even a World's Fair, and the best ever known, gets nowhere when its origin is political and it is specifically designed to prove that you can make prosperity and prove instead that you cannot.

It is good the President didn't select 100 billion as his aim for the national income or America might find it necessary to stay up all night to keep enough things going to speed the circulation of money. For what matter it how the speed is accelerated so long as it is?

All of which leads to the conclusion that socialism has as much to learn about business, industry, prosperity and government as the robot about life.

STALIN FORGOT OUR BOYS

Pity the New York Reds. Brush away a tear for the New Jersey Pinkos. Let slip a sob for the New Deal Fellow-Travelers. They must all switch their viewpoints, alter their aims and burn up a lot of their printed trash about the struggle against the Nazis in Europe and the Bund in America. For Stalin has crawled into bed with Hitler. In fact he leaped under the quilt; boots and all, at the first goo-goo eyes.

Let Earl Browder and Fritz Kuhn shake hands before the cameras. Let them explain that this is another "phase" of the struggle to free the world from something or other. The alibi need be neither deep nor clever. Their followers only want something catchy to mumble between riots. Don't give them anything hard enough to make them think. Then the leaders can pass the hat again and spend the winter on a sea voyage.

For the Red is still a Russian. And the Russian is still an Oriental. And the Oriental was never known who didn't change sides in the middle of a war. It is a long time since Frederick the Great, Marie Theresa and Moscow Czars started slicing Poland but the technique is the same today.

It is a new barker in front of the side show and his spiel may sound coarser but Warsaw knows its meaning.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

THE BARREL-STAVE SWING

Under the trees from earliest spring
We used to rock in a barrel-stave swing
Grandfather bound it with wire, and said,
"Apple barrels make a good bed."

The wood was sweet as the fruit that lay
Packed in it on an autumn day.
When first we swung there, the faintest green
Touched the boughs with their sunlit sheen.

And as the summer advanced, the trees
Wove leafy, lovely harmonies.
When autumn came with its royal red,
The boughs were flaming overhead.

Time's half circle—a year half done,
And we had observed it in shade and sun,
Happy and carefree, taking our ease
In a barrel-stave swing beneath the trees

The word "skyscraper," applied to tall buildings, is a slang or colloquial expression. The word originally was a nautical term meaning a kind of sail.

Panama canal traffic tolls for the first seven months of 1939, its 25th anniversary year, totaled a little more than $13,000,000.

The new infantry drill regulations take up as much printed space as a novel, or about 230 close-set pages.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York — The old man wanders the Avenue hour after hour and night after night. His beard is long, a dirty gray color, and no comb seems ever to have touched it. His hair is long and patriarchal, curling down over the ears and, in back, almost to the shoulders. His clothes ragged, botchy and nondescript. On a hot summer's day he may wear a heavy overcoat, tied together with twine; or in winter no overcoat at all.

His eyes are blue, a very light, baby blue, and watery. They are clear, limpid. They speak, but incomprehensibly. They seem to express unutterable sorrow, and calm resignation to some calamity. They are eyes that meet the startled stares of passersby, yet seem not to see, nor even to care to see. The sight of him inspires an urge to give him alms, but he asks none and accepts none. About him is an air of complete patience, even tolerant pity for those who hurry along well clad and well fed. It is as though he among the Mad Millions were the only sane one.

I suppose he is mildly insane. Certainly by the standards of us who assume we are not, he is. Yet how peaceful, how contented is the Old Man of the Avenues. Where does he eat and sleep? Why does he walk the Avenues? The last is probably the easiest to answer. He walks the Avenues, filled as they are with people, because he is alone. Self-stratified, his constant hunger is for the peace, the sound, the nearness of other human beings.

What strange thoughts he must have, this mysterious Old Man! He is like an umpire who makes his decisions but does not speak them. To him—and I only guess this from those strange, baby eyes—all other people are in a scramble of non-essentials. All other people are living in opium dreams of a world they made themselves, too drugged to see a far more beautiful world that is under their make-believe one.

Whenever I pass him, I feel uneasy. It is the clearness of his eyes. They mirror no worry, no unhappiness, no suffering. They are as clear as a cloudless sky. They bespeak a satisfied soul.

It is too bad the Old Man is crazy.

Loneliness is destitution's twin. The City is its breeding ground. A man wrote me saying that dwellers in such a place are like stretches in parts of the southwest where there is no neighbor for many miles would give anything to have people—millions of people—for companionship; but millions of people are not the answer to loneliness. Being alone is not the cause of loneliness.

Women must suffer more than men. There are at least half a dozen that wander around roadway among the night's pleasure hunters. Some beautiful flowers, other cabbie pleas to buy gum and a few self-morning papers. One upon a time we shed hurried tears because youngsters had to stay out on the streets peddling papers. Now it is women; and we are sorry for them, too. Mostly our sympathy is wasted. It is a business. It is a living. Probably it is more exhilarating than keeping house and washing dishes.

The loneliest women of all, maybe, are those who must share the business of the city for the hundreds of cafes and saloons in Long Island neighborhoods. Wander into almost any such place in Sunnyside, Jackson Heights, Astoria or Flushing, and there will be at least one woman, generally several women, sitting on stools drawn up to the bar. They call the bartender by his first name.

These women are not young; nor old. They are merely housewives who, left alone evening after evening, seek release from their loneliness in "surroundings" they believe are convivial. Coming home late at night, I see the Last Guard of them sitting there in places practically deserted except for them. They don't appear to be inebriated; just talkative. The bartender yawn and glance at the clock.

It would be short-sighted to suggest that this sort of thing is a bad influence on women. It is, rather, a release for loneliness resulting from home conditions that are not as we would like to see them. Seeking release night after night at neighborhood movies is much the same.

And along Eighth Avenue on hot summer nights, the old women sit in the narrow stairways gabbling. Sometimes a cat sprawls lazily nearby on the sidewalk, miraculously escaping being stepped on by passersby. They sit thus, these old ladies, and sometimes old men, too, until the traffic begins to quiet down; and then they slowly climb the stairs to stuffy rooms to sleep.

So you after year, wearily, worthlessly, they live out their wretched lives.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO
Friday, Aug. 28, 1914

German army headquarters at Berlin issued a dispatch today declaring the allies "have everywhere been defeated and are in full retreat after nine days' fighting." Generals von Buelow and von Hausen completely defeated the Franco-Belgian forces, about eight corps, between the Sambre and Namur and the Meuse in several days' battle and are now pursuing them to the eastward of Maubeuge.

City Clerk E. L. Williams and Charles Burhans were quite tired today after driving the new truck purchased by the city from Milwaukee to Fond du Lac and having 23 blowouts during that distance. The truck had stood in storage for some time and the inner tube had deteriorated. At Fond du Lac they were loaned a new tube. They couldn't make the trip to Appleton in one day, staying at Theresa the first night.

10 YEARS AGO
Friday, Aug. 23, 1929

Sergeant Earl Vandebogart of the Appleton police department was severely injured the previous afternoon when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver as he rode a horse along Highway 41. The officer was thrown to the pavement and his left arm broken. Riding with him at the time were Charles Sparling and George Walter.

A sedan belonging to Oscar Bauerfend, 808 N. Superior street, was stolen the previous evening from its parking place in front of city hall. Police Chiefs George T. Prim of Appleton and R. H. McCarthy, Kaukauna, returned Thursday night from Escanaba, Mich., where they spoke at the annual convention of the Michigan Police Chiefs' association.

William Wilson, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilson, 548 N. State street, who had been cadging at the Ozaukee Country club golf course at Milwaukee during the western open golf tournament, was seriously injured when he was struck in the eye by a golf ball. He was being treated at a hospital.

The gas liberated by the cartridge in the new United States army rifle is used to reload the chamber. The gas is not used until the cartridge leaves the barrel.

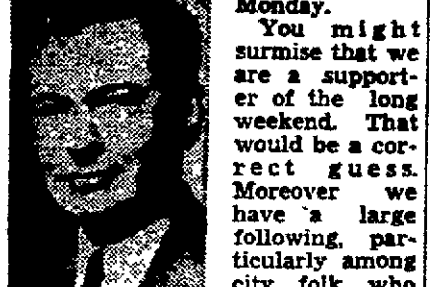

In the course of a year's business the 12 Federal Reserve banks will handle about five billion separate pieces of coin and paper money.

Production of gas masks is now an important part of the rubber industry in the United Kingdom. A Scottish rubber firm has recently acquired a factory for an output of 140,000 masks per week.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Since the President has started juggling holidays, let's hope he goes all the way and juggles so they all fall on Monday.

Grover

You might surmise that we are a supporter of the long weekend. That would be a correct guess. Moreover, we have a large following, particularly among city folk who often enough never get daylight off-hours except on weekends.

The latter is exaggeration, no doubt, but the idea is that given a longer weekend once in a while there would be time for ambitious undertakings, such as visiting the Washington art galleries or going to one of the fairs.

This business of making all holidays fall on Monday has been a long time getting under way. Yet it would not present any insurmountable difficulties. Take Washington's birthday. The date means practically nothing at all, from a historical standpoint. Some time after Washington's birth the accidental world began monkeying with the calendar and threw his birthday out of place. The old calendar says he was born on a different day from the one the new calendar credits.

Columbus day this year comes on Friday and is a dead loss. Usually it is anyway, because almost no states and few businesses think the discovery of America is anything to go mad about. They don't observe a holiday for it. But if they did, this year it could be shifted over to the next Monday, and something could be done about it. With Saturday afternoon, Sunday and Monday off, a fair amount of home work could be done. There might be time for the letter to Aunt Rebekah that you put off writing just after the 1929 crash for fear she might make a tooth.

Republicans already are gleefully claiming that the President will lose the football vote for shifting Thanksgiving from November 30 to November 23. Many small colleges hope to take in enough on the big Thanksgiving day game to even up for all the losses on the bad days in between. And now that their schedules are all made out and iron-bound with contracts, along comes the President and changes the nature of the contracts.

To Supreme Court? Some irate Republican football fan might get just mad enough to take it to the Supreme Court. After all, the President has voided the contract that called for Jenkins Teachers college to play old Kishal on Thanksgiving day. It's worse than the gold clause. The big game won't be on a holiday at all, but is merely another of those post-season games that attract nobody but the faithful, particularly if it has to come in the middle of the week—on a Thursday that isn't Thanksgiving any more.

And the Supreme Court might get irate and throw the President for a loss, even after these months of court-New Deal agreement. Thanksgiving day games concern the high court as well as the lowly alumni. There is nothing to prevent them exercising their "personal" academic predictions just as one of their members, Justice Stone, accused them years ago of exercising their "personal economic predictions."

And then where would we be? Thanksgiving would be unconstitutional.

That just about sums up the confusion which has reigned in the Wisconsin senate for weeks. The Republicans have to depend upon "free-lancers" for support for their program, men who vote one way one day and change their minds the next. They have to contend with a shrewd and energetic Progressive opposition, and they are getting little help from the governor's office.

COAKLEY BLUE

The same informant reports that Maurice Coakley, the Republican floorleader, has been feeling "very blue" because of the criticism which descended upon him for his punishment of the recalcitrant Democrats in the senate a few weeks ago.

In a burst of temper Coakley and his colleagues, however, insist that he was justified in his action. They point out that they removed the liquor tax, obnoxious to the Boelens group, from their revenue program when they requested it. But then the Democrats joined with the Progressives and the free lancers the other day to ear-mark the remainder of the revenue bill, and more, for pensions and relief, so that the budget was more out of balance than ever.

PENSION CHARM

The proposal to ear-mark the money which was to be raised for general operating purposes for pensions illustrates a trait of legislative politics which has grown in importance and significance. The mention of pensions in the legislature is enough to ruin party lines. An amendment to a tax bill which proposes to raise more money for pensions ruins the original purpose of the tax bill. It appears to be a sin to vote against a pension bill for some legislators, no matter how hare-brained its conception may be.

Pliny, a Roman writer of the first century A. D., recorded that soaps were known to the Germans. The soaps, however, were not used for housecleaning, and only by the more progressive individuals for bathing.

ABSENT-MINDED PROFESSOR

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—A Republican state senator of experience and insight was analyzing the administration's current troubles in the upper house.

"Our major difficulty," he observed, "is that there is no party majority in the senate. We have a minority of Republicans, and some free lancers. We have to depend on the free lancers to put our program across, and when we need them most and are depending on them, they leave us in the lurch."

"It wouldn't be so bad if the Progressives were not so ornery, but they are very ornery. Nor would it be so bad if Boelens wasn't so stubborn and strong-minded."

"I could use now some firm direction and control from the stairs (the executive office) but it doesn't seem that we're going to get it."

That just about sums up the confusion which has reigned in the Wisconsin senate for weeks. The Republicans have to depend upon "free-lancers" for support for their program, men who vote one way one day and change their minds the next. Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

DIZZY IS RIGHT
I wonder what you will say next, writes a reader from the wild west. Your article about people getting fat got me dizzy. You say one should lay off carbohydrates and starch food, and that animals do not eat them and that's why they stay streamliner. I reckon you haven't seen horses and cattle being fattened. (S.G.W.)

Perhaps you were dizzy when you read such remarkable assertions in my column, Friend W., for certainly I never wrote them, and while the printers sometimes play terrible pranks with copy I hardly believe they would go that far.

What I said and what I now repeat is that most people consume carbohydrate food, refined carbohydrates, such as starch, sugars, pastry, cake, candy, syrups, etc., to excess, eat more of such refined carbohydrates than they can burn or use and the excess tends to pile up in superfluous fat.

Referring to animals, I said that animals not under domestic care do not eat more than they need and hence do not become too fat—except animals that hibernate and purposefully store up fat to keep them warm and supply the limited vital energy they use during hibernation.

Everybody requires a reasonable amount of fats and carbohydrates (sugars and starches) daily, and no one, not even a fat person who should reduce, can "lay off" from such food without serious risk of ruining health or perhaps bringing on grave illness, if by "laying off" you mean excluding such food from the diet.

Of course animals eat fats and carbohydrates. I pick on your misinterpretation of what I say, Friend W., because you seem to be in earnest.

Before I venture to make a positive assertion in reference to a question of health or sickness I give the matter a good deal of study and thought.

Several times I have been wrong in my teachings or advice, and I have acknowledged it here and apologized and reversed my former teachings or advice.

But when I'm right it is hard to remain silent while unsound or absurd teachings are imputed to me either ignorantly or maliciously.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What, Mr. Miller, is Texas?

Where under the sun can I get wheat germ here in Texas? I have never seen a flour mill in this part of the state. Would brewer's yeast be a suitable substitute for it? (Mrs. G. W.)

Answer—Most mills now sell wheat germ in small quantities to people who call and ask for it. Some mills are shipping it by mail on orders from people anywhere at around 20 cents a pound in two or five pound packages, with carriage charges collect. No yeast is not a satisfactory substitute, for few persons can eat enough yeast to get the amount of vitamin B complex they get in a few ounces of what germ daily.

It is getting so that the responsible senate leadership fears the mention of pensions on the floor, so great are the chances that the boys will fall out of line. There is magic in the word, and in people's consciousness of the thousands of old-folk who are most interested in that word than in other legislative affairs.

A Public Museum

Editor Post-Crescent—Vacating the City Council room renews interest in a city or county museum.

Most communities of progressive leadership establish sooner or later a place where articles of historical interest and worth are placed on exhibition. First for preservation, second for educational purposes perpetuating their remembrance in time and manner of service in home affairs, showing educational comparisons through changes of time, and the variety available would be varied if a collection of such was made now.

The minds of the rising generation have not been directed to a conclusive observation in this so as to be considered of significant importance, but many in more advanced life greatly cherish these relics in comparison, retaining fascinations for them historically and would be very greatly pleased to offer those that still remain for future educational comparisons.

A public museum was discussed a few years, but no available space was within reach then. Now this vacated portion of the public library building renews interest, appearing as though some extended library service might have charge of both. Only tables and show cases for safety would be required additionally.

The possibility of using the vacated postoffice building may develop. However the mind's eye observes the old Reeder Smith corner at the corner of Oneida and Lawrence streets to be an ideal final location for a public museum, a structure which would make every citizen feel proud of his city, convenient and a beautiful token of respect for remembrance, and if situated upon in high regard through future time. Why not today?

Science Could Perform Real Service With Love Detector

BY DOROTHY DIX

A great deal is said about the lie detector, which is an ingenious gadget that tells whether a speaker is uttering the truth or not. But what we really need is a love detector which enables men and women to know for certain whether the feeling they are experiencing is the grand passion, or a passing fancy, or merely a case of indigestion.

DOROTHY DIX

It would seem that it would be the easiest thing in the world for people to know whether they are in love, but in reality it is the most difficult, and it is the one thing about which they make the most mistakes. Nor is this strange, for not many of us are great lovers who can set our hearts upon one ideal man or woman and be faithful to him or her until death. Rather we are like children in a candy shop, surrounded by so many sweeties that we don't know which we like the best, or which to choose.

Also, time and place have so much to do with our emotions. A man can think himself in love with any pretty girl in a white dress on a moonlight night. A girl can see the hero of her dream in any personable youth with a fresh shave and hair cut and a flower in his buttonhole. Also, our taste changes as we grow older so that the cuties we adored at 20 revolt us as much as 40 as would the steady diet of chocolate creams that we once craved.

Furthermore, our darned old hearts are too choosy. They love Arabella because she is beautiful, and Sara because she is intelligent; John, because he is such a grand character, and Dick because he is such a fascinating hellion. And so there we are. Lacking a love detector how are we to tell which love is going to last and which one is the real, true, blown-in-the-bottle one?

No wonder so many boys and girls can't decide between the rival attractions of Mamie and Susie, or whether it is John or Tom who has captured their maiden fancies. No wonder that so many men and women discover after marriage that it was the man and woman they didn't marry with whom they were really in love, instead of the ones they did marry.

Of course, science having left us flat in solving this problem, there is no absolutely infallible way in which youngsters can analyze their emotions and tell whether the thrills and chills and hectic fevers they are experiencing indicate a fatal case of love sickness, or just a slight attack of romance that will pass in a few days.

There are, however, a few tests that any amateur can apply to the party of the other part that will go a long way toward giving him or her a line on whether what he, or she is experiencing is real love, or near love, or just a temporary delusion. If, for instance, you think a homely girl is Miss America, or an ugly man better looking than Robert Taylor, or if you see the ugliest ducklings as they really are, and they still look better than any swans to you, that's love.

If you can see all of the faults of an individual; if you can see that a girl is high-tempered and naggy and bossy; if you can see that a boy is dictatorial and selfish and conceited, and not care just because they are Mary's or John's little ways, that's love.

If what you feel for a girl makes you want to roll up your sleeves and go to work so that you can take care of her; if what you feel for a boy makes you willing to seek and wash and scrub for him and go without pretty clothes and parties just to be with him, that's love. If you are willing to do what Mary wants you to do instead of what you want to do yourself; if you would rather do John's way than your way; if you think of Mary's

Of course, no miracle does happen. Nature goes its relentless way. If Mother lets little Johnny gorge himself on candy; if she lets little Mary play with a sharp knife and cut herself; if she does all the chores while the children play; if she goes shabby to give them all the good clothes; if she makes a doormat of herself, they trample over her, and then she bewails herself over how ungrateful her children are.

Not long ago a mother wept upon my shoulder and told me that her daughter blamed her for her wrecked marriage. "Just think of the cruelty of that," she said, "when I have spent my life saving for Sally and never denied her a thing."

You may have the fun of inventing some of your own movements with the aid of a hand ball, or jumping rope. Once you get a group interested there is no telling just how exciting your exercising can become!

Two Movements Illustrated
The Tug-of-War exercise is one to strengthen the abdomen and pectoral muscles. Two stand arms length apart, then clasp each other's arms between elbow and wrist, and pull backward as hard as you can. Pull the other over if you can! By bending your knees you may have a better back bend which provides a good balance. As you pull keep your stomach in, and your chest high!

Rush-an-Resist
Get behind a person and push her. She will resist with all her might, by tightening her muscles and bearing a dead weight. This is particularly good if the person you push is heavier than yourself. With open palms against his or her back push with all your might, keeping your shoulders straight and your stomach pulled in. The exercise may be reversed when the person you push falls over!

This exercise is a leaflet with valance for it, enclosed a self-addressed envelope bearing a 3-cent stamp. Write me in care of the Post-Crescent.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Here is a girl who is a modern slave to Baal. She is destroying her happiness and ruining her husband because of her foolish devotion to this idol. Her sister cannot reason with her, and her moral upbringing seems to be unavailing. See if you can diagnose her case.

CASE O-129: Rosalie B., aged 26, has been married for four years, and wants you to see Rosalie and try to help her. Her sister pleaded, "She has a fine husband and is an intelligent woman who ought to make a good wife. Our parents were respectable people, and brought us up to be good girls."

"But Rosalie is going to the dogs. She has had numerous affairs in the last year, although her husband has thus far been ignorant of her misconduct."

"I don't think it is because she no longer loves her husband, for she seems very fond of him, and he is devoted to her. But she seems really deranged. She must be a psychopathic personality, for she is heading for ruin."

"Dr. Crane, what is wrong with her?" I have argued and reasoned with her, but she continues with her scandalous conduct."

My interview with Rosalie brought out the fact that she had undergone a surgical operation a year previously which resulted in the loss of her Fallopian tubes. She could never bear a child thereafter.

In a previous Case Record I have reminded you readers that the nymphomaniacs whom I have interviewed, have all suffered from feminine inferiority complexes. Women who will do almost anything to avoid bearing children, will grow frantic if they find they really cannot become pregnant. The basic psychological reason for woman-kind's terrific upset at the menopause is traceable to this same fear of sterility. Women want to be normal. They will even resort to Rosalie's extreme actions to prove their normality.

Sexual Inferiority Complexes.
Rosalie feels very deflated in her feminine vanity because of her sterility. She worries because she is below par as a woman.

Although she is an attractive girl with a college education and all the social charm that a normal woman possesses, she has lost her perspective.

She now exorcises "sex" as her god and worships it slavishly. Like innumerable other women in modern society, as well as down through previous centuries, she fears that she has lost her charm in the eyes of the male sex.

In order to prove to herself that she can still attract men, she engages in clandestine affairs. They are a tonic to her wounded sexual vanity. She doesn't have a specific hunger for sexual relations. She simply demands numerous affairs as proof that she can still interest a man.

Don Juan Diagnosed
Rosalie is really a frightened, panicky girl who constantly is harassed by the dread of sexual death. Like the menopausal wife who feels that she is no longer physically attractive, Rosalie is in a frenzy.

She fails to realize that neither Fallopian tubes nor the uterus itself can influence her sexual charm. And a couple of adopted children can bring out all the maternal behavior from her which any mother can show for her own youngsters.

I brutally dissected her behavior with even greater frankness than I am permitted in this column. I joked her into tears until this false idol of sex was shattered. Then we rebuilt her perspective. An adopted youngster helped turn her attention unselfishly upon normal feminine behavior.

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a 3-cent stamp and a self-addressed envelope for reply. Letters and readers' names are never published.

Grandmother Should be Given Right to Live Her Own Life

BY ANGELO PATRI

The traditional grandmother must be amended. Our grandmothers are not old, they do not sit wrapped in blanket shawls, coddling hot water bottles, nor do they expect to be put in the corner to be brought out, usefully, on suitable occasions—occasions that suit their daughters and their growing families. Our grandmothers have not ceased living actively in their own right, and that fact must be considered by their families when they attempt to make disposition of the older woman's time and interests.

"You aren't going out tonight, are you, mother? I'm going to the reception and I'm depending on you to take the children for the night. I can't enjoy myself if I have to think of them with only the girl to look after them. You've just got to help me out."

"Sorry, Emily, but I am going to the concert with Grace tonight."

"But mother, I tell you that you can't. You simply must stay to take the children for the night. Ken expects it. He would never go out tonight and leave the children with Nora. Can't you see you're being selfish? Surely you have some affection for your grandchildren? It can't be such a sacrifice to stay in one night for them."

"Emily, I don't tell you to arrange your life to suit mine. I don't ask you to put my interests before your own. Why should you expect to direct my life, plan my days, demand my services as a matter of course? You've been doing that now for some time. Ever since the children came you have taken me for granted, my life at your disposal. Jim's wife, too. It won't do. You may as well understand now that as long as I am able to carry on I am going to do so."

Why not? These grandmothers have brought up their families. They have done their full share of family service, and they continue to give themselves generously to their grandchildren. To assume that they have no lives of their own, no friends, no interests that cannot be set aside at a moment's notice is to make a serious mistake. Our grandmothers are active, alive and interested in many people and concerns beyond their grandchildren.

When grandmother lives in the home of her children the situation becomes more complicated. There cannot be two heads to a household, and it is always difficult for two women of a family to live in peace and harmony. But one must lead and the other follow. In this situation grandmother should be the follower, filling in where she can, doing her bit toward keeping the home running smoothly.

But this does not mean that she must surrender her life's habits and interests wholly and be at the service of the family on demand. Her place would be clearly fixed and she must have liberty to go and come, to follow her own interests, to be herself. Intelligent cooperation on both sides will make harmonious arrangement possible.

It is unfair to expect grandmother to take over the care of the children whenever their mother feels that to be desirable. There can be only one mother to a family. With responsibility goes authority, and grandmother can have no authority in this relation. She can be asked to help on occasion, and she will gladly agree to do so, but it is just too much to expect of human nature, as demonstrated in grandmothers, to demand complete self-suppression for the sake of the grandchildren. Our grandmothers are young, active and keenly alive, more power to them.

Meet Mr. Lochinvar

Yesterday, Cecily says goodbye to her New York friends, and refuses a proposal of marriage from a young man she doesn't love. Her Aunt Olivia immediately fits Cecily, not into her family, but into her staff.

Chapter Five
Four Relations

Cheerfully, Cecily did the things that Olivia asked her to do. "Cecily, darling, I need Miss Simpson this morning. Would you mind going over the house with the housekeeper to take inventory?"

Or, "Cecily, here is the list of linens we'll have to replace for Doreen. You can get them at Tracy's and have them changed. An adopted son of mine, you know, would you pack a bag for Gloria? She's telephoned that she's going to Southampton for a few days and needs some more clothes." Or, "I hate to ask you to do this but poor Lucy—"

—Lucy was Olivia's maid — "had such a dreadful toothache. I sent her to the dentist and I simply can't let her go by without getting at least one trunk out of the way. You can fill it with sweaters and skirts and sport things, but be sure to pack them so they won't be unpacked."

Cecily left New York for Vicksburg in Olivia's motor accompanied by Wilson, the chauffeur, and Tito, Olivia's pekinese. "Would you mind going up this way, dear? I thought perhaps you might take up some stores that we'll need, and you could see that the housekeeper has things ready when Gloria and I arrive on Saturday. I'd like to have you go with us, but we're bringing some guests and you'd be more comfortable this way."

So Cecily, with suitcases under spices tied in a small bag and added to the water in which fish, ham or tongue is boiled, will add a very pleasing flavor.

If liquid in which olives are bottled is thrown away when bottle is opened, olives may be kept indefinitely if olive oil is poured over them after they are put back into bottle.

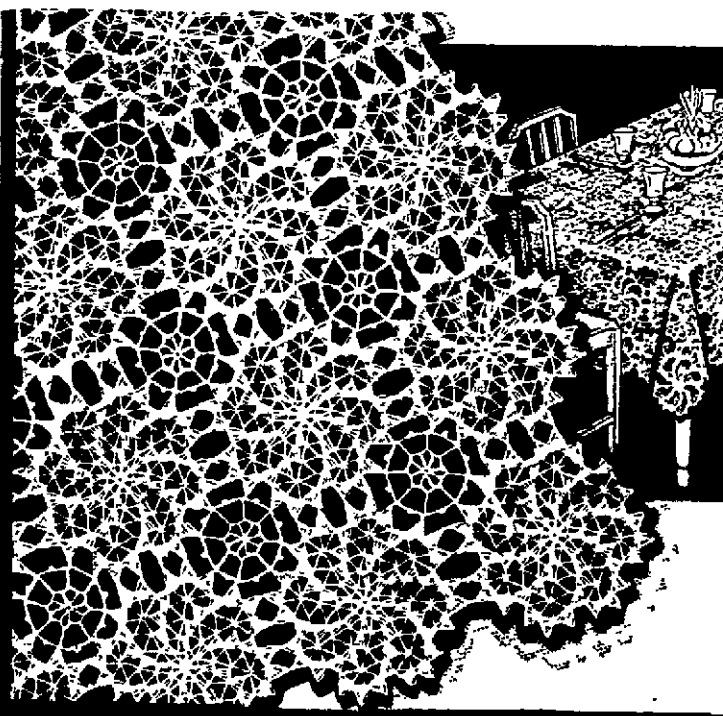

When lighting a birthday cake always light the candles in the middle first and those on outside last.

My Neighbor Says—

Keep your lawn cut as long as it continues to grow. It should be permitted to grow into the winter about one inch longer than its normal summer length. If the grass is too long it will hold leaves and smother out the grass. Lawns need no leaves for winter protection.

DOUBLE DUTY
Dear Mrs. Post: Can I be expected to wear the engagement ring of another woman? My fiancé was engaged before and at that time bought a beautiful ring for his fiancée, which she later returned to him. He now expects me to wear this ring as is, and I think that is more than any man has a right to expect even of someone who loves him most. What do you think Mrs. Post?

Answer: I think it very strange that he should be willing to transfer this same ring to you. But perhaps he feels that it goes with his heart, and in taking this from her and giving it to you, the ring that was his symbol goes with it. If I were you, I would try to be tranquil and find out how he feels about it, and then tell him you understand but that you feel differently—if you still do.

Today's Simplicity In Decorating
Dear Mrs. Post: Will you tell me, according to today's fashion, what would look best as decoration on a grand piano which stands in our living room.

Answer: A few easily removed framed photographs, one or two big ones or else two or three smaller ones, standing on a not too big piece of brocade—or on the bare piano.

Don't Send a Present in a Case

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been going to a doctor for four or five years. The first year I was able to pay him. Then things got very bad for me and I didn't have any money to pay the bills. I told him and he said for me to keep on coming to him anyway. Now I have a little money again so that I could pay at least some of the bills. But he doesn't seem to send them to me any more. I would like to send him something to show my appreciation. May I do so, or should I send it to his wife, whom I don't know? Or shouldn't I send anything at all?

Answer: He is evidently not sending you a bill because he feels that you can't afford to pay him, and if you can't afford to pay him, it would certainly be unsuitable for you to send him a present. On the other hand, you could send him the amount you were going to spend on

THE HOME GARDENER

By EDWIN H. PERKINS

Of all the seasonal garden effects none is so gay as the picture presented by the tulip garden in full bloom. The yellows, lavenders and reds are either strikingly delicate or strong in color, depending altogether upon the selection made by the gardener. Discordant effects come from adventuring with unknown sorts and when this happens, harmony can be achieved by transplanting the offenders even when in full bloom. This is hardly possible with most other types of flowering plants. Further than that tulips allow for profusion of bloom starting with the very earliest sorts and continuing until early summer. Few other plants can boast of so wide a blooming range.

In type and shape tulips exhibit a wide range of choice than is available from many other plants. Not to mention height, which may vary from the lowest growing sorts to the kinds justly ranked as "giants."

If you are intent on establishing a tulip garden for next year, it is recommended that you make your selection of bulbs very early and have them ready to plant at the proper time for your locality. Proper tulip planting dates are 4-6 weeks before the plants are to begin growth before hard frosts come. No harm results if a small amount of too growth is made before the freezes arrive.

am inclined to think that this criticism was based largely on the fact that North fulfilled his two heart doubled contract. How he did so is a matter for some speculation. Granting that East opened the "made kind" surely he did not continue that suit, and I, for one, should not care to take over the declarer's contract for him, unless the defense was unusually weak.

After holding the so-called king, East's natural shift would be to the diamond eight obviously his long card in the suit. Dummy would duck and West would win with the queen. Now, unless West made the outrageous return of a spade or a diamond, declarer's position would be hopeless. Of course, if both defenders shied away from leading clubs at any time during the play declarer might well salvage his club loser, but it is hard to believe that they could show such lack of imagination.

The play, however, is secondary to the criticism of the bidding. It is with the remark, "East has a good double of two hearts, which is dangerous," that I wish to take issue. In my opinion, East had a sound double of two hearts, and although, generally speaking, every double of less-than-game contracts can be said to be speculative, I cannot imagine what action would have been more logical for East to take. Surely, in view of the fact that the opponents were "on the run," as revealed by South's acrobatic use of the S. O. S. double and North's failure to take any action until he was forced to, it would have been the height of cowardice for East tamely to have passed over the two hearts. Nor could he afford any constructive action aimed at game for his own team. Two no trump certainly would have been more risky than a double of two hearts, inasmuch as East had no sign of a heart stopper. The only reason that East-West had the faintest chance of making a game in no trump was that South had only two hearts instead of three. Just to show how experts differ from the continent, I disagree thoroughly with the quoted dictum. Holding East's hand, I most certainly would have doubled two hearts and (without meaning to be immodest) I bet I would have licked it, too!

Large Collection Left to Museum in Carl Mason Will

Proper Display Is Only Requirement Provid- ed in Bequest

New London—The entire Mason-Willett historical collection which numbers nearly 1,000 items and forms the basis for the New London Public Museum's historical department has been willed permanently to the museum, it was announced this week by the Rev. F. S. Dayton, curator.

The provisions of the will were enclosed by executors of the estate of the late Carl W. Mason earlier this month, the only requirement being that the collection be given proper display.

The collection fills the entire west side of the museum and contains many of the articles used by early pioneers in New London.

Other additions to the museum this month include 40 valuable biological specimens presented to the Rev. Mr. Dayton by a visitor to the city, Professor William E. Menzel, chemical and mining engineer and professor in the department of mineralogy at the University of Chicago. The items were from the professor's private collection and he promised to send some mineral specimens later.

A rare South American ostrich egg, that of the rhea, is among the gifts left by Leon Park, a South American missionary who also visited New London this summer. Amethyst crystals, and other items were among Mr. Park's donation and are on display.

New entrance doors were fitted to the museum building this month. The institution is open free to visitors from 2 to 5:30 every afternoon from Wednesday to Saturday. A custodian is always present.

Lion Was in Sole Command of Ship When Guardsmen Arrived

Cape May, N. J.—There was a dead lion at the bottom of the sea today and the ship the beast commanded for more than eight hours steamed peacefully on toward Caracas, Venezuela.

First Sergeant Michael Peskan of the marine corps, coast guard chief boatswain's mate, John Williams and seven coast guards found "not a soul in sight" yesterday when they came alongside the Dutch freighter Amazone, six miles southeast of here, in answer to a wireless call for "someone with a gun" to kill a prowling lion.

The Amazone's crew of 30 and nine passengers had barricaded themselves below decks when the lion, one of a group of wild animals consigned to the zoological gardens in Caracas, broke loose and prowled the forward deck.

Peskan and the coast guards threw a boarding ladder to the midship deck and climbed up to see the lion poke its head around a corner and growl. The lion backed away and the men went aboard.

"The lion was lying in a very awkward position between a hatch and a wall," Peskan said. "I had to go into a cabin and shoot through a porthole. They told me I would have to hit him in a vital spot so I aimed for his eyes and hit him right between them."

But the lion did not roll over dead when the 30 calibre rifle bullet hit. A second bullet brought the lion from hiding and two coast guards shot at it.

The crew put a line around the beast's body and threw it overboard.

Hold Woman for Trial; Mistook Man for Bear

Washburn—Miss Harriet Scholl, 33 East Lake, was bound over for fall trial after a preliminary hearing before Municipal Judge E. C. Hart yesterday on a charge of fourth degree manslaughter in the fatal shooting Aug. 18 of Charles Moore, 65, of Cable.

District Attorney Walter Norlin quoted Miss Scholl as saying she fired a shotgun at Moore when she mistook him for a bear.

Sophie Tucker Is Given Suspension

Actors Equity Finds Famous Blues Singer Guilty of 'Treason'

New York—The actor-stage-hand war reached a new crisis today with the suspension of Sophie Tucker from Actors Equity, an action at least temporarily terminating her 30-year stage career.

The "last of the red-hot mamas" was indefinitely suspended by equity's council, which yesterday found her guilty of "treason" in accepting a charter from the stagehands' union after her own union had been expelled from the parent actors' body, the Associated Actors and Artists of America.

"It's just what I expected," said Sophie, who is still president of the American Federation of Actors, the organization which the 4-A expelled on charges of executive mismanagement.

"I shall continue working with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees (the stagehands)."

Harry Richman, vice president of the A. F. A. and a supporter of the blues singer, will go on trial September 25 before equity's council, whose decision in Miss Tucker's case will bar any equity member from appearing on the stage with her until she is restored to good standing.

Young GOP Opens State Conclave

Address by Governor Is Highlight of Today's Program at Sheboygan

About 15 Outagamie county Young Republicans are attending the annual state convention which opened at Sheboygan today.

To counteract reports that a resolution would be introduced both approving and criticizing the Heil administration, there were other indications that party harmony would be stressed at the 2-day meeting.

An address by Governor Heil topped today's program, which also included election of permanent officers.

Other resolutions reportedly ready for presentation included one advocating prohibition of a third term for the president.

The delegates were to be welcomed by Mayor Herman C. Runge and Harlan Kelly, Sheboygan attorney. After the governor's address plans were to tour the village of Kohler and picnic at Greendale.

A torchlight parade will precede this evening's program, which has Frank Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher, as speaker.

On Saturday, Dr. F. L. Gullikson, state chairman, and Congressman Charles Hawks, Jr., of Horicon, will speak.

ANNUAL PICNIC Given by Appleton Maennerchor

Sun., Aug. 27th, 1939 - West Side - Pierce Park - Appleton Brautwurst & Refreshments Served - Public Invited - Good Time for Everyone

It Is Said...

That traffic, pedestrians and other customers around and about the North Western crossing on W. College avenue started the day with a chuckle about 7:30 this morning. The wig-way signals began wiggling, the bells began ringing and traffic, including one very small dog, all stopped amidst the fanfare that heralds the passing of a streamliner. It wasn't. It was one of those putt-putts with a couple of section hands on it, missing a 'putt' now and then in the morning's dampness. Most of the customers didn't say anything. But it was too much for the little dog. He watched in disgust for a couple of seconds, then started after the putt-putt and gave the section hands a loud piece of his mind all the way across the crossing.

That three visitors from Weyauwega, in Appleton, to see Mayor Goodland about Appleton day at the Wausau county fair, received a surprise when they visited the old city hall and found empty offices yesterday.

A playful bystander told the trio that the library kicked the city out of the building because the city didn't pay its rent.

P. S. The Weyauwega men finally found the new city hall building.

Committee Votes to Deny Claims Made by E. C. Fairbanks Heirs

The judiciary committee of the city council yesterday voted to deny the $7,000 claim against the city made by Frank Wheeler, Appleton attorney, in behalf of the heirs of Edith C. Fairbanks, who died April 28, 1934.

The fund, originally totaling about $10,500 was left to the city to erect a home where old folks could live at a reasonable rate.

Wheeler claims the city has not built the home nor has it used the money for the purpose intended. He represents Abbie Fairbanks Wolcott, a niece, and Irving S. Fairbanks, a nephew, both living in California.

Joseph A. Kox, city treasurer, said this morning the fund now totals about $7,000 adding that it was depleted because of losses on stocks before the city gained possession of the fund.

The Fairbanks will left about $3,000 in individual bequests in addition to the money left to the city. The will did not specify when the money was to be used for an old folks home.

The camping site is located on a beautiful wooded peninsula extending into Archibald lake. The property is owned by an Oconto lumberman, who has extensive holdings throughout the area. On the point of the peninsula stands a large lodge built by General Lew Wallace, author of "Ben Hur." It contains a bunk room to sleep 32 boys, a main room with a large fireplace at one end, a dining room, kitchen, and two large porches overlooking the lake.

Scouts on the trip are: Don Ritter, James Groh, Jerry Natrop, Bob Feuerstein, Fred Bauer, Wayne Eastman, Joe Kroner, Eugene Wehrman, Carl Hoelzel, and Duane Bates of Troop 1, Appleton; Jim Bradley and Arnie Van Dinter of Troop 13, Appleton; Don Quinn, Charles Schaller, Dick Jepson, Jim Austin, Bill Giese, Don Heiss, Gilbert Buschey, and Milton Liess of Troop 3, Neenah; Jerry Fountain and Dick Farnon of Troop 8, Appleton; Tom Berger of Milwaukee; Junior Cartier of Troop 4, Appleton; George Davis, and Louis Fenton of Troop 16, Appleton; Duane Gear and Hugh Strange, Jr., of Troop 14, Menasha; and Earl Dexter of Troop 42, Embarrass.

A. system, saw the staff perform various feats of magic, and watched the fire burn low. Cocoa and cookies were served. Jack Bylow and John Bullard had everyone guessing on a numbers game. Neil McCarthy promised to demonstrate his hypnotic powers at the next evening's campfire. The meeting was closed with the scoutmaster's benediction, and the scouts returned to their cabins for a good night's sleep.

Air Raid Shelters in Courtyard of Palace

London—(7)—Dull grey, bell-shaped air-raid shelters squatted in the courtyard of Buckingham palace today as London prepared for war from the skies and its attendant terrors.

The shelters, massive steel structures which look like shells for some gargantuan cannon, will be used, if necessary, by the palace staff. There are also other more elaborate shelters on the palace grounds for use of the royal family. ## Boulevard Is Busy Place as Menasha Revises Its Half

Pouring Operations, Started Yesterday, Will Be Finished Saturday

Menasha—After seven or more years of argument and indecision on an amicable solution to the Nicolet boulevard problem, progress has been rapid since the first action taken by the city of Menasha this week.

A row of stakes has marked the boundary line between the two cities for the past few months. Saturday afternoon the A. E. McMahon Engineering company, city engineers, checked the positions of the stakes.

Monday afternoon street department employees started to remove the turf from the Menasha side of the boulevard from Washington to Ahnaip street. Tuesday morning a power shovel moved in and took out dirt to a one-foot depth from the Menasha side.

Pour Concrete
By Tuesday afternoon workmen had pneumatic hammers and sledges at work knocking off the old curbing. Wednesday morning workmen were getting ready to put in the new concrete and pouring operations started on Thursday. The section from Washington street to Second street in Neenah was completed yesterday.

Pouring of concrete for the rest of the Menasha section up to Ahnaip street will be completed by Saturday. George Probst, Appleton contractor who has a contract for the construction of some 30,000 feet of sidewalk in Menasha, is putting in the concrete.

Workmen this morning started to replace the turf on the Neenah edge of the boulevard. Only the Menasha half of the boulevard from Washington street to Ahnaip street is to be removed at this time. When the discussion arose last December, Menasha wanted removal of the east end of the boulevard and the west end while Neenah wanted removal of the boulevard opposite Second, Fourth and Twelfth streets.

Enforcement of Roof Drain Rule Urged by Board

Engineer Says Action Would Stop Backwatering in Sewers

Menasha — All roof drains in the city of Menasha must be disconnected from sanitary sewers before relief can be secured from damage caused by water backing up in the sewer system, A. E. McMahon, city engineer, reported at a meeting of the board of health Thursday night at the Menasha city office. The meeting was called by Alderman Edward Zeinger, chairman, because of complaints from property owners who have suffered from backwater damage.

The city has an ordinance requiring that all storm water drains be disconnected from the sanitary sewer system but the law never has been actively enforced. An investigation conducted by J. M. Holderby, superintendent of the Twin City sewerage disposal plant, showed that many of the mains are carrying more load than average expectations would indicate.

Leaks in the mains and storm water are the two chief causes of the excessive load. Complaints have been particularly numerous from Paris street, Adams and Keyes streets, Water street and some portions of Broad street. According to sewerage plant officials, removing the storm water alone would cut down the load carried by the plant and would increase its efficiency as well as lower the cost of operation.

An active campaign to secure cooperation in eliminating storm water from the sanitary sewer system is to be inaugurated by the board of health. The ordinance adopted by the city council provides for a fine of $1 to $25 for a conviction under the law.

Movieland Its People and Products

One of the six New York boys who became famous on stage and screen as the "Dead End Kids," Billy Halop, is here seen in a depressingly sympathetic mood with his two spaniels who certainly look as if the weight of the world rested on their shoulders. Billy and the kids are slated to appear in Warner's "The Angels Wash Their Faces" with Ann Sheridan and Ronald Reagan—in "Hell's Kitchen" with Margaret Lindsay and Mr. Reagan—and in "The Dead End Kids at Military School."

Honolulu, U. S. A. — Dear Staff: I've written of Ginger Rogers' unfortunate visit to Hawaii and of how she lost friends by her failure to give the press and crowd at the dock even so much as a smile, so it's only fair to Hollywood that I in turn relate the very different behaviour of another star, Shirley Temple. Shirley did correctly, everything that Ginger did badly. She autographed, posed for pictures, proved herself to be as sweet and natural as our little girl and yours. She's been here twice, and more people were brought for her second arrival than greeted President Roosevelt. The first time Shirley came here, she was a cuddly child. That time, Duke Kahanamoku (he's the sheriff and unbelievably popular) carried her ashore on his shoulders. The second visit, Mr. Temple thought it would be lovely to repeat the act, but it was Shirley who said: "Don't you think Mama, that I'm a little big for that now?" So she and the Duke left the ship hand-in-hand.

Little Miss Temple could have this American Territory just for the asking. By her graciousness, she's won the friendship of the entire populace. Everyone speaks her name with a caress. The only islanders who don't go to see her pictures are those too infirm to get to theaters. How different from the half-empty houses that greeted Miss Rogers' latest film, "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle."

The theater management is weeping crocodile tears, for heretofore, Ginger was one of his best drawing cards.

Today, I leave for home. Much as I love Hollywood, saying goodbye to Hawaii saddens me. This is a little like taking leave of paradise. The hospitality on these islands brings glad tears to my eyes. It's no wonder so many who come to visit, stay. I'm coming back here again next summer, meanwhile, I'll be seeing you soon—with leis on my shoulders and a song in my heart.

JIMMIE FIDLER.

Buy 'Ruined' Peach Crop for 25 Cents; Harvests 20 Bushels

Climax Springs, Mo. — Henry T. Evans, 84, walked into Rome Welsh's peach orchard and began harvesting large Albertas. "Hey, what's the big idea?" roared Welsh. "Just gathering the peaches I bought from you last spring." Then Welsh remembered. Discouraged after a late freeze, he publicly proclaimed "My peach crop is ruined. I'd sell it for a quarter." Evans had produced the 25 cents. He expects about 20 bushels.

cast to dish out a news flash. "Robert Young, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen star, was drowned this afternoon when his canoe overturned on Payette Lake," he announced. The news, at first, was a dreadful shock to Bob, but after coughing twice and producing no water from his lungs, he decided it must be a mistake. And he's been that glad, ever since.

Garbo'sblad, too. The sneak preview of her new picture, "Ninotchka," wowed 'em—and, most wonderful of all, her comedy scenes drew the biggest hand. Can't blame her for being overjoyed, for no star ever had greater need of a hit picture.

In spite of the fact that Janet has married her Adrian and Joan Fontaine has "yessed" Brian Aherne, we still have romance. Dorothy Lamour and Charlie Barnett, who's due for an engagement in the Palomar, look very, very serious, and Franchot Tony and Mary Healy are a steady twosome. We've been crediting that recent illness for Franchot's somewhat wasted appearance. Maybe love should get the blame.

Six Runs in 11th Beat Clintonville

THURSDAY NIGHT'S SCORE
Manitowoc 9, Clintonville 3 (11 innings).

NEXT SUNDAY'S GAMES
Green Bay at Manitowoc.
Clintonville at Two Rivers.
New London at Seymour.

CLINTONVILLE—An eleventh inning rally which netted six runs for the Manitowoc Shipbuilders gave them a 9 to 3 win over the Clintonville Trunkers here last night. The loss sets the Trunkers back in a tie with Seymour for the league lead and puts them in a position where another loss could throw them out of the running. Both teams played ragged ball with fumbles and foolish plays. The disastrous eleventh saw all the Ships bat and knock John Tomlin out of the box. Up to that time, Tomlin had pitched good ball but lacked support. Wallie Raasch finished the game for the Trunkers. Lefty Feltman went all the way for the Manitowoc nine. Feltman pitched good ball limiting the Trunkers to eight hits while his colleagues collected twelve.

Manitowoc drew blood in the first inning when Joe Helm was walked, went to second on a sacrifice, to third on an infield out, and scored on an error by Malinowski. Clintonville shortstop. The Trunkers had to wait until the third to get their first tally. Tomlin doubled, went to third on a single by Stief who boosted his batting average last night with three hits in six trips. Trimbale hit into a fielder's choice scoring Tomlin on a close play at the plate.

Score on Double Steals
The teams scored their second runs on similar plays. In the fourth stanza, Joe Vnuk, who leads the league in batting and who was held to two hits in five appearances, grounded out. Ken Wilda, who ranks second to Vnuk in hitting, was walked and went to second when Gospy was given a pass. Tom Gray hit into a fielder's choice forcing Gospy at second but putting him on first and third. Gray stole second and Wilda went home when the ball was thrown to second and no play was made.

In the next inning the same thing occurred to Clintonville. Stief was on first and Wallie Malinowski was on third and a double steal was attempted with both runners being safe. The Trunkers then went on to take the lead when Trimbale singled scoring Malinowski.

Manitowoc tied the game in the eighth inning when Vnuk doubled and scored when Wilda added a double.

The teams battled on even terms until the eleventh when the Ships began to clout the ball. The first two men, Gray and Witczek, who batted for Gorychka, singled and Lefty Feltman walked. Joe Helm hit a grounder to the shortstop who missed the ball allowing two runs to score. A double by McCambridge scored another and a single by Kosowski added two more to the total. Vnuk drove in the last run with a single.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

LAST evening we saw Wausau and Grand Forks teams in the Northern league, a Class D circuit, play ball at Wausau. It was something we'd planned to do for a couple seasons and when Rich, Wausau catcher, ended the game by smacking a homer over the right center wall on the first ball pitched in the tenth frame, it was an evening well spent.

We've talked Class D ball for a long time largely on the basis of what we have been told about the plan. But after watching two clubs last evening that are second division outfits, we're satisfied with that brand of ball any time. And if the two teams were second division teams, then the first division clubs certainly must be good.

Both clubs showed young ball players all of pretty fair size and range and they hustled every minute they were in the park. A few of their misuses afield were the result of too much hustle but no fan ever will condemn them for trying. They hit the ball hard, they ran everything out and seldom were they caught napping. Added to that they fought for every break and their chatter on the bench almost forced the umpire to clean house once.

In the ninth inning Wausau attempted to grab the ball game with a double steal but failed. The night before the Lumberjacks had won a game in the ninth when one of the lads stole home.

The game opened with Grand Forks scoring four runs on some lusty hitting. The Wausau hurler was yanked after the fourth score and then another lad took over and worked his head off to the end. He covered first and he backed up third and was in the game every second. It was the same with the other lads. Two outfielders went after almost every ball, and someone backed up every baseman on every play. It was sound fundamental baseball.

We had an opportunity to meet Wally Gilbert, the Wausau manager, and Johnny Mostil, the Grand Forks manager. Johnny is the old Chicago Sox centerfielder. Gilbert plays third base for Wausau. The night before the cops had been called to chase Johnny from the game for protesting too long, while Gilbert had been given his 1940 contract as part of a Wally Gilbert night.

Both managers appeared to be enthusiastic about their charges in their comments in the office before the game and their actions on the field indicated a lot of patience. Another noticeable thing was that when the manager stepped into the picture during an argument, the boys listened to him and took orders.

The night previous, when a Wausau newspaper photographer had taken a picture of Johnny being ousted, his kids went to get for grabbing the photographer and taking the plate away from him. They probably would have, too, but they couldn't locate him. Since then Johnny has set the boys straight—that if the photographer gets a picture that's his good luck and he's left alone.

How does Class D ball compare with the present State league ball? Well, take the best from each team and add to it hustle and drive and baseball finesse and you have Class D ball. At least that's the way it appeared last night.

We also met R. J. Dudley, president of the Wausau club, and during the few minutes of conversation asked him about that Clintonville win over the Jacks recently.

He said that the club had used several of its newer performers in the game and that it will take care of the Trunkers when the teams meet at Clintonville. If we're not mistaken, he commented that Wausau had shelled Two Rivers in another exhibition.

Johnny Rigney Is Credited With 8th Straight Win

Holds Boston to Six Hits And Chicago Sox Cop by 3 to 1

CHICAGO—(P)—Johnny Rigney won his eighth straight victory last night, holding Boston Red Sox to six hits as the Chicago White Sox triumphed, 3 to 1. A crowd of 20,000 saw Rigney strike out eight men, Jimmy Fox four times, in recording his eleventh triumph of the year. Not a base on balls marred the pitching performance of either side.

The White Sox made only eight hits off Eldon Auker and Joe Heving but bunched them effectively. Mike Kreevich collected two doubles, driving in one run and scoring another, while Larry Rosenthal helped himself to three singles.

The defeat in the series opener dropped Boston nine games behind the pace-setting New York Yankees.

YANKS COP NO. 5
St. Louis—(P)—The New York Yankee steamroller wasted very little of a 12-hit assault yesterday to pile up an 11 to 5 victory over the Browns and stretch its current winning streak to five straight games.

Powered by home runs by Charley Keller, Jake Powell and Frankie Crosetti, the attack took up all the slack caused by Monte Pearson's wobbly pitching performance. After the Browns had come on to go in front in the sixth, the Yankees put together four runs in the seventh and coasted in from there.

INDIANS POUND BALL
Cleveland—(P)—The Philadelphia Athletics found double disaster in Cleveland yesterday as the rejuvenated Indians knocked the cover off the horseshoe for 10 to 2 and 17 to 2 victories in a twin bill.

Ken Keltner blasted four hits in five attempts to feature the opener. He got two more hits in the nightcap.

ONCE TOO OFTEN TO THE WELL
A Tragedy In One Line
By Buell Patterson

OVER confidence is a terrible thing at any time but when that over confidence is placed in an ancient fishing line it is just too bad. I am just recovering from my own foolishness in not changing a line today because I thought I'd be wasting precious time on the lake and didn't expect to tie into a whale.

We hadn't been out on the water more than ten minutes when the spinner I was casting was hit going a cyclone and my line started going toward the bottom. I really thought I was snagged. I gave a good sock and then the fun started. A muskie that was all of thirty pounds was battling me.

He made his first run and headed for the bottom. I let him go keeping a tight line. Then he swung back toward our boat and I reeled in furiously. The big fish didn't care for that and started off again. I kept on the pressure and suddenly the line snapped.

It was just the victim of old age and I had no right whatsoever to have used it. The fish surprised shot up to a broadside view and flurled his tail in disgust went down out of sight.

Gone But Not Forgotten
We stuck around the vicinity for about ten minutes waiting to see whether he would jump to try and throw the hooks out but he never showed in the rough water again. It looked as if the day was going to get many strikes and be productive but all it gave us after my sacrifice was a good waiting.

About the only lesson I gained was to practice what I have preached so much and always to make sure that all tackle is in the best of condition. The fish didn't relent after my mistake all day and I didn't even get another rise.

Old Lac Vie Desert has another veteran campaigner who will be mighty tough to get on a line again. Once hooked and allowed to go free the big fish are wiser and more difficult to catch ordinarily although occasionally one will be caught which has a hook in its jaws.

The day was an ideal one with the wind from the west and blowing a nice sea up around us. We cast but the fish seemed disgusted with us and stayed in their own element.

Milwaukee Beats Hens 6-4; Marrow Smashes a Homer

Brewers Chase Phillips From Mound With 3 Runs in First

MILWAUKEE—(P)—The Milwaukee Brewers opened their final home stand of the American association season by defeating Toledo last night, 6 to 4. The Brewers fanned Red Phillips from the mound with a three-run first inning attack, and picked up three more off his successor, Lloyd Dietz. Buck Marrow, Milwaukee hurler, helped his own cause with a home run in the eighth. Vernon Mackie, Toledo catcher, homered in the ninth. Both blows came with the bases empty.

Johnny Hill, Milwaukee third baseman in the race for association batting honors, went hitless in three trips.

The score:
Toledo 200 000 001—4 8 2
Milwaukee 301 000 11x—6 8 0
Phillips, Dietz (1) and Mackie; Marrow and Hernandez.

St. Paul, bidding for a place in the Shughartsey playoffs, spanked Louisville, fresh from a 13-inning triumph over Minneapolis, 5 to 4 yesterday.

Victory brought the Saints within three games of fourth place Louisville, which must maintain or better this standing to qualify for the playoffs.

Minneapolis reduced Kansas City's league lead to a game and a half as Bill Butland defeated Indianapolis, 8 to 3, while the Blues were dividing a double header with Columbus.

Kansas City won the opener with Columbus, 2 to 0, and lost the second, 5 to 2.

Weiss Is Member of All-Star 'Varsity' Selected by Coaches
Chicago—(P)—The college All-Star board of strategy, apparently settled on its "varsity" front for next Wednesday's charity football clash with the New York Giants, turned today to a study of reserve strength.

Coaches indicated a decision on the No. 1 substitutes would be made today or after Saturday's final scrimmage.

The starting lineup never is a problem since the public decides that in a nationwide poll. In last night's drill, perhaps the only night practice before a rehearsal at Soldier Field Monday, the following combination appeared to be the coaches' favorite:

Bill Daddio, Pittsburgh, 1e; Joe Beiner, Notre Dame, 1t; Horace Bell, Minnesota, 1g; Dan Hill, Duke, 1r; Mike Kocheil, Fordham, 1g; Al Wolff, Santa Clara, 1t; Bowden Wyatt, Tennessee, 1r; George Faust, Minnesota, 1g; Billy Patterson, Baylor, 1h; Bob McLeod, Dartmouth, 1h; Howie Weiss, Wisconsin, 1b.

Of this group, only Weiss, McLeod and Wyatt were named in the starting poll.

ESKIMOS EAT "ICE CREAM"

How does it happen that people live in the Arctic but not in the Antarctic?

The chief reason seems to be a simple one - the Arctic has a far better food supply than the Antarctic.

Except for moss, the Antarctic has little plant life. The Arctic on the other hand, has large stretches of ground with plants of several hundred kinds. Aside from a few kinds of shrubs which produce berries, the wild Arctic plants are of little use as food for people, but they help support animal life.

A Greenland Eskimo carrying load for party of Robert E. Peary.

Eskimos in the Arctic live on the animals. They hunt and kill polar bears, using their flesh for food and their hides for clothing.

The Arctic hare, a large-sized rabbit, is another kind of game, and in some parts of the Northland is important for food. Arctic hares have white fur in winter.

Eskimos also hunt birds and caribou for food. Caribou are members of the reindeer family. These which are natives to lands north of the Arctic Circle are not of large size. Larger-sized reindeer have been imported into Alaska and a section of northern Canada for use of the Eskimos.

Many Eskimos depend on the sea for food. They capture seals in large numbers, eating the flesh, turning the fat into oil, and making clothing from the skins. They treat the walrus, a relative of the seal, in the same way, but it is not so commonly caught.

Some Eskimos eat what has been nicknamed "Eskimo ice cream." It is made by mixing marrow taken from reindeer bones with fat and blueberries. The mixture is heated until it melts, and then is beaten very much as we might beat cream.

The next step is to let the mixture cool until it becomes a hard, frozen mass. Then it is eaten. You and I probably would not enjoy such "ice cream," but Eskimos seem to like it very much.

In times when the supply of flesh food is small, Eskimos gather the roots and leaves of certain wild plants. They also eat the inner bark of willow and birch trees from time to time.

There is no careful census of the number of Eskimos, but here are estimates: In Greenland, 13,000; in Alaska, 14,000; in Siberia, 1,000; in northern Canada, 5,000.

If those estimates are correct, the total number of Eskimos in the world is only about 33,000. Most of them live north of the Arctic Circle. Their life is hard, but they seem cheerful. They did not know there was a better world until white men came to visit them. Eskimos who have come south almost always have died very soon, so for these people the Arctic is still the best home.

Issue of Subsidy To Conventions Is Still Not Settled

Payment to Veterans Groups Stopped, but Problem Unsolved

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Although Attorney General John E. Martin has announced that the appropriations in question would not be paid, the fundamental point at issue in the controversy on the propriety of legislative appropriations to subsidize conventions of veterans organizations remained unsolved, observers noted in reading the attorney general's decision.

Martin told William T. Evjue, who had petitioned the attorney general to institute injunction proceedings to halt the release of $60,000 in state funds which the legislature had appropriated to aid the American Legion and the Disabled American War Veterans for their Milwaukee and Green Bay conventions, respectively, that he had advised the state treasurer and the secretary of state to refuse to honor claims against the appropriations by the two veterans' groups. Martin held that the appropriation of funds, with instructions for release by the state emergency board, was an unlawful delegation of legislative power to the latter. Informally it was explained that the issue was identical with the supreme court's invalidation of certain appropriations made by the emergency board late last year, and which were halted upon court suits by members of the incoming Heil administration against outgoing members of the LaFollette administration. Martin ignored, however, the essential claim of the petitioner, Evjue, that the appropriations are unlawful because they are made to private corporations for non-public purposes. Martin's opinion said that he "had not found it necessary to examine closely" that contention. Therefore, since Evjue's petition actually did halt the disbursement of the funds in question, it was considered doubtful that a taxpayer's action could be instituted to sustain the contention of the unlawful appropriation for private purposes.
